MINISTERS' MEETING IN TOKYO

FINAL INSTRUCTIONS TO JAPANESE DELEGATES CHINESE COUNTER-PROPOSALS TO BE REJECTED

(From A Special Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.
In accordance with the instructions of the Chinese Foreign Office, Mr. Hsu Shik-ying, the Chinese Ambassador to Japan, called on Mr. Arita, the Japanese Foreign Minister, at 2 p.m. yesterday to explain to the latter in full the present situation in China, and the reasons why the Japanese proposals on the Sino-Japanese relations cannot be accepted by the Chinese Government. The call lasted three hours, Mr. Hsu leaving the Japanese Foreign Office at 5 p.m.

It is reported that Mr. Suma, Secretary-General to the Japanese Ambassador to China, will arrive at Tokyo at three o'clock this afternoon. After hearing the report of Mr. Suma with regard to the results of the last two meetings between Mr. Kawagoe, the Japanese Ambassador to China, and Mr. Chang Chun, the Chinese Foreign Minister, the three Ministers of the Japanese Foreign, War and Naval Offices, Mr. Arita, General Terachi and Admiral Nagano, will hold a conference to-night to decide whether the Japanese Government will modify its proposals on the Sino-Japanese dispute or use strong measures to carry out the proposed North China scheme.

Mr. Arita will then hold a meeting at the Foreign Office to-morrow to fix the final method of solving the Sino-Japanese dispute for the Japanese Government. Mr. Suma will leave Tokyo on Wednesday next to carry with him the final new instructions to Mr. Kawagoe at Nanking. It is learned that during the last meeting of the Japanese Foreign, War and Naval Ministers, yesterday morning, it was determined to reject all the Chinese counter-proposals, if there should be any.

Seeing that there is still wide divergence of views between the Chinese and Japanese Governments with regard to Sino-Japanese relations, the Japanese military activities in North China (Continued on Page 20)

BRITISH TRADE IN CHINA

Keen Competition To Be Met

MR. KIRKPATRICK
INTERVIEWED

London, Yesterday.

British traders have to meet competition from American goods carried in fast ships to China, and everything possible must be done to remove the disadvantage from which Britain suffers, said Mr. W. M. Kirkpatrick, recently appointed to represent the Exports Credit Department for China work, interviewed by the Daily Mail, following an article cabled by Lord Rothermere from Hong Kong, stressing the urgent need of Government aid for British trade and shipping in the Far East.

Mr. Kirkpatrick added: "The provision of fast transport of passengers and goods is one of the problems I propose specially to study."

Mr. Kirkpatrick is travelling to China at the beginning of December. In the meantime he is consulting shipping and trading interests.—Reuter.

the month and were assembled at Hangchow, from where they were flown to Shanghai this morning. The pilots thrilled the huge crowd of spectators by an exhibition of stunt flying, and the Chinese city was beflagged in honour of the occasion.—Reuter.

Sweeping gracefully down from the sky, the giant Pan American Airways' Philippine Clipper arrived in Hong Kong from Macau last Friday afternoon, thus causing a new page to be written in the history of aviation in Hong Kong. A regular service between Hong Kong and San Francisco is expected to be established shortly, the giant Clipper planes to be used throughout. (Herald Photo).

COLLISION WITH LORRY IN MT. DAVIS ROAD

30-YEAR-OLD MANAGER OF WELL-KNOWN FIRM

One of the most tragic motor fatalities of recent years occurred yesterday afternoon when Mr. Odd Brunsgaard, manager of the well-known firm of Messrs. Thorsen and Company, returning home from the office shortly after 1.30 p.m. in his Vauxhall motor car, No. 746, collided with a motor lorry at a slight right-hand bend on Mount Davis Road and sustained injuries of so severe a nature that he died in the Government Civil Hospital shortly after 2.30 p.m. Mr. Brunsgaard was travelling alone at the time.

Details of the accident are very meagre, but enquiries at No. 7 Police Station elicited the information that Mr. Brunsgaard was travelling towards Felix Villas in his saloon car and collided with motor lorry No. 3287, driven by Ho Tin at the time. The lorry, it was stated, was proceeding from Kennedy Town to the Queen Mary Hospital and was coming up from Mount Davis Road.

The Vauxhall motor car which Mr. Brunsgaard was driving was very extensively damaged, the whole of the right side being smashed in, and it was stated that Mr. Brunsgaard suffered severe internal injuries through being struck on the chest and in the abdomen by the driving wheel, which was forced right back by the impact of the collision.

An idea of the damage done to the car may be gleaned when it is stated that even the rear seats were knocked out of position, while the coachwork on the right-hand side was completely crushed. The radiator was also damaged, while on the left side the bonnet was opened up and the mudguard knocked out of position. Not a particle of glass was left of the windscreen.

Although it was stated that the lorry was also damaged, no detailed information was available regarding the extent of the damage to the vehicle, or the whereabouts of the lorry driver, who was stated to have escaped with comparatively slight injuries.

When asked what he thought was the cause of the accident, the officer on duty at No. 7 Police Station replied that he could make no statement, but in reply to a further question said that the road surface at the point where the

POSSIBLE MOTIVES CONSIDERED

NOTHING BUT DISCREDIT ON RUSSIAN DIPLOMACY

ITALY REFUTES ALLEGATIONS AS FANTASTIC

London, Yesterday.
Though the equivocal tone of M. Maisky's Note to the London committee is puzzling political circles, who expected a more vigorous stand, it is conjectured that the Soviet is marking time pending the foreign reaction to it.

No one doubts that the Soviet is willing to despatch an expedition to Spain, but it is believed that the Soviet is equally anxious to avoid an armaments race with Germany and Italy, in which the Soviet would be at a serious disadvantage owing to the distance; consequently the Soviet, though claiming a free hand to do as it pleases in Spain, is at the same time endeavouring to stave off criticism by not actually renouncing the pact. The population is prepared for all eventualities, but drastic action is not likely for a few days.—Reuter.

Later: The sub-committee of 13 of the principal nations on the non-intervention committee met at the Foreign Office at 10.30 a.m. to-day to review the general working of the full committee and to ask the Soviet to elucidate certain aspects of the Russian letter.

M. Maisky was the first to arrive. Questioned by Reuter as to whether he considered that the Soviet was bound by the stipulations made yesterday, he said: "Yes, I think the document was signed by the committee. It was presented to the committee."—Reuter.

LONDON PRESS COMMENT
London: On the whole the Soviet Note has had a very bad press. The Times thinks "it will cause more regret than surprise, and after considering the possible motives for the move and finding that the most likely one is the desire to forestall the evidence of Russia's own breaches of the agreements, it concludes: "Responsible opinion in this country will continue to support the maintenance of complete neutrality, and there is no reason to believe that the French Government, who are understood to have expressed their disapproval of the Russian move in advance, will voluntarily adopt a different policy, even if the Russian Government finally leave the committee."

The Morning Post thinks "whether or not the stroke will have the effect of reassuring opinion at home, it is certain to reflect nothing but discredit on Russian diplomacy and to intensify the prevailing distrust towards Russia."

The News-Chronicle and Manchester Guardian see some excuse for the Russian threat in the provocation afforded by the apparent breaches of the agreement on the part of the Fascist Powers, but only the Daily Herald suggests that Britain and France should follow the Russian lead.—British Wireless Service.

SPECIFIC ALLEGATIONS
Later: A catalogue of precise allegations of violations of the non-intervention pact is contained in two Notes from the Spanish Government to the British Foreign Office, consisting, firstly of a telegram from Senor Bata, the Governor of Spanish New Guinea, stating that a motor-ship with its hull and funnels painted to resemble a German vessel appeared on October 14 and fired at short range and sank a Spanish ship, the captain and crew of 40 being drowned.

The second Note alleges that on October 8, 160 German youths arrived at Seville on a German boat with 12 anti-aircraft guns and joined the rebel forces. On October 10, 15 German submarines (Continued on Page 20)

ITALY'S NEW EMPIRE

Recognition Accorded By Germany

INSPIRED PRESS COMMENT

Berlin, Yesterday.
Germany has recognised Italy's East African Empire, including Abyssinia.—Reuter.

NATURAL REVERENCE
Berlin: The first concrete result of Count Ciano's visit to Germany came after Count Ciano had visited Herr Hitler this morning. It was officially announced that the Fuehrer had informed Count Ciano that Germany had decided formally to recognise the Italian Empire in East Africa, including Abyssinia.

Germany's recognition of the Abyssinian annexation was not made dependent on any concession by Italy, declared a Government spokesman. It was the natural sequel to Germany's policy of neutrality and her efforts to avoid everything likely to complicate a conflict in which Germany was not interested.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

Peace Message — Italian Style

Bologna: Contrary to expectations, Signor Mussolini, in his eagerly-awaited speech here, did not refer to Germany's recognition of the conquest of Abyssinia.

Addressing a crowd of 150,000, the Duce declared: "I wish to send out a message which may go beyond the mountains and seas. It is a message of peace—peace in work and work in peace. Since 1929 millions of men, women and children suffered from a crisis which we cannot but admit is the result of the system. At the end of the fourteenth year of the Fascist era I offer the olive-branch which springs from an immense forest—a forest of 8,000,000 bayonets, well sharpened and gripped in firm young fists."—Reuter.

SOVIET AIR CHIEF IN TURKEY

Istanbul, Yesterday.—The chief of the Soviet Russian air defence force, General Eldeman, arrived here to-day with several accompanying pilots, and was received with military honours. ### HU HAN-MIN'S FUNERAL STATE CEREMONY TO-MORROW

SALUTE OF GUNS TO BE FIRED

(From A Special Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.
The State funeral of the late Mr. Hu Han-min, the veteran Kuomintang leader, and Chairman of the Central Executive Committee before his death, will take place at noon to-morrow. Representatives of the different Government offices and public organisations throughout the country have arrived here in order to attend the ceremony. All the foreign Consuls at Shanghai have been instructed to represent their Ambassadors and Ministers and to attend the ceremony on behalf of their respective countries.

The Chinese Government has announced that all Government offices, schools, public bodies and business firms must fly their flags at half-mast to-morrow. It is learned that the Fort of Bocca Tigris will fire a salute of 101 guns at noon and planes will take-off at the same time as a tribute to the deceased leader.

The remains of Mr. Hu Han-min will be laid to rest in the Dragon-Eye Cave, Canton.

Shanghai, Yesterday.
The squadron of 10 military aeroplanes purchased for $1,000,000 from Shanghai's contribution to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's birthday fund was christened at Lung-hwah aerodrome this afternoon. The Mayor of Greater Shanghai, Mr. Wu Teh-chen, officiated at the ceremony. The wives of 10 prominent Shanghai residents broke bottles of champagne over the propellers of the machines, which were named the "Chung Chen" squadron, after the Generalissimo's courtesy title. WINIFRED lay face down-ward on a blanket in front of the cottage. Sun warmth poured over her brown back and shoulders and seeped into every pore of her relaxed, bare legs.

At first she allowed the fly to stroll along her spine as it willed, but after a moment or two it began to disturb her contentment. She reached around and invited it to seek other territory for its promenade.

All was well for a few seconds. Then it alighted where the bathing suit ended and crawled erratically down her right leg.

"Can't you take a hint?" she inquired somewhat egotically.

The fly didn't answer. It was too busy making a non-stop flight to the back of her neck where it made a ticklish landing and started hiking again. Winifred shook her head. She opened her eyes and sat up.

"Darned old fly!" she muttered. Behind her a voice said, "Thank you, madame," and she whirled to face her husband.

"Kenneth Sears, you flend!" "Daredevil Sears," he corrected amiably. "The human fly!"

He offered her the feather. "You quit the game too soon, honey. I meant to land on your ear next."

"Like this?" Winifred asked, bringing a left around to his ear. Then she kissed him. "Away from me," he ordered. "I have a date with a mermaid in your lake."

He pulled his shirt over his head and stepped out of his slacks, the operation leaving him clad in bathing trunks and a curly grin.

"I can beat you out to the red buoy," he told her, "using only one hand and three toes of my left foot!"

"Did you get the groceries?" she asked as they raced across the sand.

"Got everything on the list. They're on the kitchen table."

They splashed through the shallows until they came to the ledge, then they were swimming. Ken didn't have to give his wife any lead. She had been swimming since her third summer and her crawl stroke was a thing of beauty. Their hands touched the buoy at almost the same instant.

"Boy, this feels good!" Ken gasped. "The village was like a smelting plant."

He submerged and came up on the other side of the buoy.

"Peek-a-boo, little man," Winifred cooed. "Was there any mail?"

"Just some ads." He came around to her side again. "Say, I almost forgot," he said suddenly. "There was a phone call, or rather, there had been. Doug Henry. He had phoned and left word for me to call back, so I did."

"I hope nothing has happened to any of your Boy Scouts," Winifred said. "That is, nothing too terrible."

He splashed her. "No, there's nothing wrong. Doug just wanted to know if he could bring the Stars here to-day."

"So that was what my bad dream meant! Do you remember what you told him?"

"Well, I told him I'd see if you had any other plans for the day."

She shook her head at the buoy. "I thought we had that all worked out," she said. "During these two weeks there weren't to be any Scouts underfoot."

"Yes, I know dear. But I didn't think you'd mind having them for just a few hours to-day. After all, we aren't going to do anything but lie around and eat and swim. The Stars won't interfere with that programme."

"No," she admitted. "At least, not much more than a wagonload of baboons."

"Oh, listen, Winnie! You've said yourself that they're nice kids. And they're not real young fry—every boy in that patrol has a level head on his shoulders. We call them Stars because—"

"—they're all Star Scouts," she finished for him. "Yes, I recall hearing that before. But, Ken, I wonder if you know what day this is?"

"Of course I do! It's our anniversary. Six months ago to-day some young intellectual threw an old shoe and nearly fractured my skull!"

"Correct thus far. Do you further realize that in the last month before we came out to the lake you attended exactly four troop meetings, three patrol meetings, a staff meeting, a leaders' roundtable, a camp rally, and an overnight hike?"

He nought vainly for a satisfactory answer. "I'll admit," he confessed finally, "that this has been a busy month—"

SHORT STORY

The Best Of Scouts

By ROBERT L. MILLER

"I should say so! Why, I've had enough evenings alone to cut nearly all the pages in that set of Gibbon contributed by your sainted Aunt Elizabeth."

"Golly, Win, I thought you liked Aunt Betty." He gazed at her in pained astonishment. "Look here, darling, we're having a fight!"

"So you've found that out! Bright man!" Suddenly she gave the buoy an angry push and started swimming rapidly toward shore. Ken caught up with her at the ledge and waded the rest of the way at her side.

"I didn't realize you felt that way about the kids," he said gloomily.

Her answering smile was dreamy, as if she had forgotten all about their quarrel. "Somehow it irritated him, but he hopefully tried another trick."

"To be truthful, Win, the more company we have here to-day, the better I'll like it."

The smile vanished. "The honeymoon seems to be over," she observed.

"Don't be silly, honey. I'm talking about that bracelet. Why in the name of heaven did Rita have to wish that off on us?"

Winifred sat down on the steps. "I thought she explained it quite thoroughly, Ken. They had to drive home through East Town and you know how many holdups there have been in that section lately. However, she and Warren are coming out this afternoon to get it."

"Yes, but why didn't they leave it at the clubhouse?" Ken asked her.

"Too many people knew about it. Everyone there saw Warren give it to her and before the evening was over just about everyone knew how much it was worth. It's barely possible that there might have been someone in that mob who collects such trinkets."

"And such a person would never think to look here for it?"

"That's the idea."

Ken shook his head. "There are flaws," he said. "We weren't alone there in the lounge when she gave it to us. Two of the orchestra players were standing over by the drinking fountain, as well as a dozen or so of the club members and their guests. And Rita's voice carries like a fire siren."

He sat down beside Winifred and she patted his shoulder. "I wouldn't worry about it, dear. There probably wasn't a soul there who had designs on it."

"I still refuse to like the idea," Ken insisted. "If the big sap wanted to squander five thousand bucks on a birthday present for her, why didn't he give it to her in a bank or else hire some guards to escort them home?"

Winifred giggled. "Or he might have called on the Boy Scouts for some protection! Seriously though, Ken, if it will relieve your mind any, you go phone Doug and tell him to bring the Stars—"

Her hand tightened on his arm, and her eyes, looking past him, were startled, as her voice died away.

The two men who had come around the corner of the cottage had their mission stamped all over them. It showed in the not inconspicuous cream-coloured suit and painfully purple shirt of the strongly built one. It appeared just as plainly in the raiment and manner of the stocky man at his side—a cherub who obviously had seen a variety of things not meant for cherubs. It fairly shouted from the small, evasive eyes of both.

"Your name's Sears, isn't it?" asked the tall one.

"It is," Ken stood up politely. "But I don't seem to recall either of yours."

"That's all right." The tall man seemed to be the spokesman. "If you got to call us anything, just call me Al and—" he indicated his stubby partner—"he's Eddie. Now that's taken care of. You know what we're here for."

"I can't say that I do." "You can't, eh? I don't suppose you'd happen to know anything about a diamond bracelet, either? There wouldn't be anything like that around here, of course!"

Ken grinned with fair success as he looked at the cottage. It still lacked the coat of paint he had promised it two summers before.

Al interpreted the glance. "Yeah, I know it doesn't look much like a place where you'd find a couple dozen diamonds, but looks are deceiving. Anyway, we happen to know that you've got the bracelet. Belongs to Warren Castle's frau."

"That's interesting," Ken could foresee the next move and he began to spar for time. "And if we did have this evidently desirable bracelet, we would be expected to hand it right over to you two gentlemen?"

"Uh-huh. Unless you're tired of breathing." Eddie nodded concurredly at this bit of logic. He took out a short automatic and began playing with it.

"Golly," Winifred said, "Guns and everything!"

Ken thanked the fates for their gift of a non-hysterical wife. "It's called a stick-up," he told her.

"Wise guy!" Al declared.

"Where is it?" he asked abruptly. Winifred's hand squeezed Ken's warningly. He returned the pressure. Al waited a moment before he grew impatient.

"Not talking, huh? You might as well because we're going to get the thing anyway." He waited briefly, then turned to his companion. "You watch 'em, Eddie. I'm going in and look around."

After he had gone the short man suddenly became articulate.

"Just warnin' you two, you'd better not try any screwy business while Al's in there."

There didn't seem to be any answer to that, and after a lead-footed moment of silence Ken grinned bleakly. "I suppose I might as well go in and show your friend where the bracelet is."

He started toward the steps, but Eddie raised the gun. "You stay right where you are! he commanded. "You're not goin' to sneak out the back way an' get help!"

Ken shrugged his shoulders. "If there were any Boy Scouts around here," he remarked conversationally, "I wouldn't need to leave this spot to get help."

The little man snorted. "An' what do you suppose I'd be doing while you was yellin' at them?"

"Oh, I wouldn't need to yell," Ken assured him. "I could signal to them even if they weren't close enough to hear."

"One of these geniuses, huh? I suppose you'd build a short wave radio out of your wristwatch!"

Ken laughed. "Look," he said. "Suppose there were some Boy Scouts on that point over there."

He indicated Gull Point toward which the long beach curved. Then he picked up a small mirror from the porch rail.

"First," he explained, "I'd attract their attention by flashing this in the sun. Like this. If I know the Morse code, I could even send them a message, with it."

"Hey, nix on that!" Eddie was alarmed. "Somebody might see it an' take notions."

"Okay," Ken put the mirror down and went on with his lecture. "Then I'd send them a message with what we call the semaphore code. Like this." He faced the point, held his right arm straight out at his side and his left arm down. "That's B." He held both arms straight out. "And that's R." He began to go faster, spelling the message aloud as he signalled. "I-N-G interval H-E-L-P interval Q-U-I-C-K. Bring help quick. Then I might add R-O-B-B-E-R-S, so they'd hurry."

Eddie platted a laugh with sarcasm. "You think anybody would figure all that out of your waving your arms around like a lunatic?"

"Any real Scout would."

"Gracious, yes," said Winifred. "You ought to attend one of Ken's meetings sometime!"

At that point Al emerged from the cottage.

"Had to tear things up a bit to find the thing," he announced. "If you'd told me where it was in the first place, it would of saved us both a lot of trouble." He turned to their watchful guard. "Well, pal, now that we've concluded our business we might as well get back to town."

They waved derisively as they disappeared around the corner. It was then that Ken did the amazing thing.

"It's a good thing they didn't know about the necklace," he said distinctly. "We saved that, anyway."

Winifred looked at him queerly. "What on earth are you talking about, Ken?"

But the visitors were back again. "Don't try to hold out on us, Sears. We heard what you said!"

WINIFRED played up nicely. "There isn't any necklace," she said. "My husband insists on having his little joke at the oddest times."

"That's your story!" Al snarled. "Mo—"

Al neglected to finish the sentence. He was too startled by the noise—or rather the cessation of noise—when a slyver wheezed and coughed to a halt out in front.

There the Stars were streaming around the corner, followed closely by an efficient-looking state trooper. The latter, judging by the pistol in his hand, was not paying a social call.

"Drop that gun there, you short fellow!" he ordered tersely; and Eddie, after a worried glance at his non-plussed ally, obeyed.

"Both of you reach as high as you can and move over to that side," the trooper commanded. "I don't want to hit anyone else if I have to blaze away at you!"

It was probably the last remark which gave Al his big idea. As he passed behind Winifred, he suddenly grabbed her about the waist and began backing toward the corner of the cottage, the struggling girl a human shield.

But Al had reckoned without the Stars, who were still in his path of escape. They fell on him like a motor shower. In fact, it is conceivable that he saw dozens of celestial bodies in the few seconds before he found himself sprawled on the ground with khaki-clad youths perched at various strategic points on his anatomy.

Ken recovered the bracelet from the glowering tall man and paused to give Eddie a smile.

"That arm waving wasn't so crazy after all," he suggested.

"Don't gloat, my love," Winifred warned him. "You may want to acquire a diamond bracelet some day, yourself."

"There was just one thing had me worried," Doug Henry put in. "I was afraid they'd leave before we could get over here. You know, after I phoned you from the life-guard station we went out on the point to watch for your signal."

"When he did, we jumped in the Comet and came right over," one of the Stars supplied. "We picked up Officer Stoner at the corner."

Winifred marvelled. "Ken," she said, "I take it all back—every word of it! From now on my favourite song will be 'The Stars and Stripes Forever.'"

"I got the Stars," Ken said. "But where do the stripes come in?"

She pointed at Al and Eddie, being escorted from the scene by the trooper. "Ask them."

OUR PARIS LETTER

AFRICA SPEAKS IN THE NEW FASHIONS

AFRICA now occupies almost as much space in Winter fashion headlines as it did last season in the new columns. Tunisia, Morocco and Egypt are all represented in the new Paris mode. Embroideries are probably the most striking thing Africa has offered us; the more barbaric the glitter, the smarter the model. Huge, shiny gold, silver or copper sequins combined with jewels and metal threads are important evening decorations chez Lanvin, Mainbocher and Schiaparelli. In many houses they appear in the daytime style-scape as well.

The stylized moons or crescents in all-over jet embroidery on Mainbocher's most successful black wool afternoon dresses have a similar origin, though the frocks themselves are essentially Parisian in style. The same is true of coloured beaded band trims, hems and similar ornamentation so characteristic of that creator's new manner.

Harem skirts, as they will be worn this Winter, are also African rather than Asiatic. Lanvin features these in chiffon for formal evening wear. A number of her hostess evening gowns have real Arab trousers. One of Mainbocher's biggest favourites is a home dinner suit, in blue and silver lame, with an enormously full harem skirt that is attached like trousers to the ankles at either side, while the front and back flow free.

Embroidered Sleeves

LUCIEN LE LONG'S contrasting-coloured embroidered sleeves, which he uses on ensembles of all types for from morn to midnight, present another phase of the African influence. One of his most stunning daytime models in this genre has sleeves in a new ruffled broadcloth whose weave gives the effect of a furry embroidery. These sleeves are effective in rust-coloured broadcloth on a black wool jacket. Their colour note is repeated in a plain rust broadcloth vestee set into the black wool dress. A band of the rust-coloured broadcloth forms an unusual trimming round the neck.

Furry effects, both in embroidery and passementerie details, are featured generally this season. Mainbocher especially favours this type, using cordings of wool like the costume, velvet, or even tufts of astrakhan on his skirt and jacket hems, sleeves or necklines. Incidentally, the vogue for real fur trims is reaching fever pitch. Natural lynx is being extensively revived. Lanvin uses it to cover practically the whole front of several coloured wool coats, giving the wearer somewhat the aspect of a glorified blonde bear.

A roll band of fox or lynx applied in a full-length stole-line to a straight wool or velvet coat results in a new and distinguished afternoon wrap. This type of thing is shown in various lengths by Mainbocher, Louiseboulanger and others. When worn open, the coats produce quite different effects, according to their length. When long, they are reminiscent of certain Empire styles; in three-quarter length

The Directoire influence is the leading trend of the day! It is shown below, in its newest expression—the Swallowtail. In this model the swallowtail tunic is shown in metal cloth, making for double smartness.

The above model shown in metal cloth is outstanding in the Paris shows. It combines four important tendencies: luxury of fabric, short sleeves, Mary of Scotland collar and the new princess silhouette.

BED COVER FROM PARIS

Schiaparelli has created a novel bed cover for a well-known elegant. It is of blue satin; over its surface are the long-hand signatures of all her friends. These have been composed into a pattern by Schiaparelli's master hand, and then embroidered. It is especially recommended to while away the retrospective moments of those who like reading in bed.

MADE WITH BREAD

Lemon Meringue

TAKE 1 thick slice bread, 1 pint milk, 2 eggs, 1 tablespoonful sugar, 1 lemon, 2 tablespoonfuls castor sugar.

Break up the slice of bread (free from crust) into the milk. Boil in a saucepan till soft. Beat the egg yolks, sugar, and grated lemon rind together. Mix these with bread and milk. Beat all together. Put the mixture into a well-buttered pie-dish and bake about twenty minutes in a moderate oven. Remove the pudding from the oven and allow it to cool. Whisk the egg white with castor sugar and lemon juice. When the pudding is cool, pour the whisked mixture on top and place in the oven for about five minutes to brown lightly. This pudding may be served hot or cold.

A SLICE of potato will clean oil paintings without injury. Dipped in baking soda, it will brighten silver.

little tricks.

SANDWICHES left over may be made into an appetizing dish by mincing them up, and placing them in a pie-dish. Pour over some good gravy. Put a layer of mashed potatoes on top, and bake till browned.

REST FOR MOTHER AND BABY

Alter The Routine If Necessary

THE tiny, new-born babe sleeps at least twenty hours out of the twenty-four, but his sleep time decreases as he grows, until, at six months old, he only sleeps for sixteen hours. By this time the rest after his first morning meal at six o'clock may not always be taken, but he will have three and a half hours' sleep after his bath. Another hour and a half in the afternoon, and three and a half hours after tea, until he is roused for the 10 o'clock drink at night, followed by seven and a half hours until the day's round begins again, make up the sixteen hours of rest which he requires.

The mother's rest must be considered, too. A woman with a new baby, who must perform all her household tasks unaided, often finds herself so weary after dinner that the waiting up until 10 o'clock at night is exhausting. Even if she sleeps until that time she is rarely sufficiently alert to cope with a half-awake child. If she is too tired to awaken baby properly, or is herself too worn out to nourish him sufficiently, it is wiser to delay the meal until 2 a.m. It does not really matter at which end of the night baby has his longest unbroken sleep, and at 2 o'clock both mother and child must be feeling more refreshed. Of course, there is the possibility of both of their oversleeping, so that an alarm clock with a soft bell should be set.

During the cold winter months, mother should take the precaution of donning a warm dressing-gown and slippers, as she must not risk getting a chill before her vitality is fully restored.

She must see that baby is fully awake before he starts his meal, although he is bound to be so hungry after his long wait that he is only too eager to drink well.

A good night's sleep for the nursing mother is most essential, for baby cannot sleep happily if mother is not rested and well enough to provide him with sufficient food during the day.

Perhaps it may happen that baby is restless when he is put down after a 2 a.m. meal, and when he does fall into a sound sleep the mother hesitates over waking him up at 6 o'clock. But that must always be done, for his meal-times must be regular.

cloth over it, and press with a hot iron. The wool will be much easier to knit with, and will look equal to new.

To remove the stain made by dripping water on marble, moisten a little pulverised chalk with ammonia, and brush with an old toothbrush.

Let's make some Cottage loaf

IT IS DONE LIKE THIS.

2 cups Simpson's Self-Raising Flour ½ cup "Royal Blue" Cleaned Currants
½ teaspoon salt ½ cup milk
2 tablespoonfuls sugar 1 egg, well beaten
¼ cup melted butter ½ teaspoon vanilla essence

Sift the flour and salt into a mixing bowl. Add the currants. Beat the egg until stiff and light coloured, add the sugar and beat until dissolved. Add milk, melted butter and vanilla essence. Stir into the dry ingredients till a soft dough is formed. Place batter in a well-greased loaf pan. Bake in a moderate oven about 30 minutes. When a dry stick is cool. Slice overnight before slicing for loaf cannot be cut in thin, even slices when it is too fresh. Serve spread thinly with butter.

When you use Simpson's Self-Raising Flour you are on level terms with the leading chefs, for they can use no finer flour — and even they cannot surpass the results you get from Simpson's Self-Raising Flour. Cakes, pies, pastry and breads — are all made golden and good with Simpson's. Made in Australia from the world's finest wheat, scientifically milled, blended and packed, completely untouched by human hands.

FUSILIERS TOO GOOD FOR NAVY

Patchy Display At Causeway Bay

EVANS WELL ON MARK

Patchy play throughout featured the clash between the Navy and Fusiliers at Causeway Bay yesterday, both teams being guilty of lapses, but on the whole the Fusiliers deserved their 4 goals to 2 victory.

The Navy were unlucky with some good efforts which either hit the wrong side of the upright or were scrambled away by Rowlands, but for the most part their forwards lacked cohesion, possibly due to the fact that they have not had many games together.

The Fusiliers treated the opposition far too lightly in the first half and as a result found themselves sharing two goals with them at the interval. In the second half, however, the soldiers increased their pace and gave a better all round display. Even then they were inclined to rest on their laurels once they had the lead.

The Navy broke through down the centre for Baxter to cut in and notch the first goal; and although the Fusiliers were presented with several promising openings, they could not penetrate Longley's charge until 10 minutes before the change of ends, when Evans gathered a pass from the right and shot first-time for goal. The ball bounced from Longley's hands back to the centre-forward who headed a good goal well out of reach.

The second half was unusually dull for the first 10 minutes, but after Hughes had placed the Fusiliers in the lead, following a nice movement initiated by Evans, the Navy had an irresistible period when they did everything but score. The Fusiliers went further

POLICE FORWARDS OFF THE MARK

RECREIO TAKE CHANCES AND WIN 3 TO 2 SECOND HALF RALLY

THE Police faltered badly after an otherwise creditable performance at King's Park yesterday, when they visited Recreio in their premier League soccer fixture and after monopolising the greater portion of the play, allowed Recreio to emerge triumphant by the margin of 3 goals to 2.

Although the Police fielded a weak side they adapted themselves extraordinarily well and played an open game which extended their opponents to the utmost. They were certainly worthy of sharing the points, but several magnificent efforts were thrown away due to weak finishing.

The combination of Beltrao, Campos and Gomes was the best feature of Recreio's play and their skilful tactics brought about all three of their goals. A. V. Gosano was the mainstay of a mediocre defence, while J. L. Alves supported well from the rear. The Police played attractively in all departments, Morrison and Willerton, distinguishing themselves in the forward line. Parker was the pick of a good middle line, and Brittain kicked well at left-back.

ahead when Evans tricked Willerton to score with a rising shot.

Ten minutes from the final whistle the Navy initiated a raid which resulted in Cannon reducing the arrears. The point was disputed, but the referee ruled that the ball had passed behind the line whilst still in the hands of Rowlands. From the stands it seemed a perfectly legitimate goal. The Fusiliers then made one or two sporadic raids but nothing accrued until two minutes from time when they were awarded a penalty for alleged hands against a Navy defender. Talbot took the kick and although Longley stopped the ball he could not prevent it rolling from his hands into the net.

From the kick-off Police were on the offensive, and were very unfortunate in having two early goals disallowed for offside. They certainly proved to be the superior side in the first half but did almost anything but score.

A surprise breakaway soon after the resumption left Beltrao in a commanding position and, although he shot weakly, McHardy failed to hold the shot and the ball rolled into the net. This goal inspired Recreio and immediately following, Beltrao increased the lead with a fine left drive. The Police then retaliated and went away with a dashing onslaught, Willerton finding the net to open their score.

Blackbourne, however, miskicked in his own goal area soon after and Gomes had little difficulty in advancing the lead. The Police made repeated attacks on the Recreio goal and after a scrummage on the goal line Willerton managed to get the ball into the net.

Recreio:—T. Marques; C. Marques, J. L. Alves; Fernandez, A. Gosano, V. Marques; Aquino, N. Beltrao, Campos, Gomes and A. Alves. Police:—McHardy; Blackbourne, Brittain; North, Gough, Parker, Pile, Morrison, Willerton, Green and Brooks.

Second Division

FUSILIERS HOLD NAVY

Playing at home, the Navy shared four goals with the Fusiliers in their Second Division soccer encounter, the soldiers securing the equaliser a few minutes before time.

Gaizley and Vale defended stubbornly against an excellent Navy forward line, but the Fusiliers halves could not cope successfully with the quick thrusts of the naval attack. Wide, in the pivotal berth, was the main obstacle to the Fusiliers' attack.

McCloud and Johnson scored for the Navy in the first half, and in the second half Sullivan, the Fusiliers leader, scored two goals to level the score.

CLUB RALLY EARNS POINT

A glut of goals featured the match between the Kowloon Chinese and Club yesterday both sides scoring five goals.

The Club were unlucky in having Stone, their leader, injured and limping on the right-wing for three-quarters of the game, but after being down by 4 goals to 1 they rallied magnificently in the closing stages. Chau Yut-kai, the Chinese leader, was the finest forward on view.

The Club opened as if they would sweep all before them, the play of Stone, Stone and Walkden being conspicuous. Stone gave the Club the lead, but an injury to this player then disorganised the Club attack and Pau Kam-ming equalised.

Chau Yut-kai (3) and Wong Kai-kit netted for the Chinese in the second half, the Club scoring through Skinner (2), Stone and Sloan.

POOR SHOOTING

South China took full advantage of a poor Engineers' team at Caroline Hill and won by two clear goals.

The Engineers' inside-forwards, Hurst, Darby, and Howlett, were unsettled against the quick tackling of Loung Pak-wai and Lau Tui-soo, delaying the final shot for that fatal second which enabled the Chinese defenders to cover up. In contrast, South China's left wing was over dangerous, Wong King Cheung and Mok Yui Sang beating Willford and Woods time and again with their direct methods. Boyling, alone of the Engineers played his normal game, and completely dominated Lau Wing Kui.

Lee Pui-lung opened the scoring for the Chinese and then Howlett made two glaring blunders. Half way through the second period Mok Yui-sang placed his drive in the corner of the net to place the issue beyond doubt.

TWO FOR HARMSWORTH

The East Lanes beat Eastern by 4 goals to 1 at Chatham Road.

What Eastern looked in stature, they made up in speed and tactics. Unfortunately for them, however, they failed with anything overhead. Harmsworth scored two fine opening half goals, while Power and Coster added the other two, Hamer netting for the losers.

CHINESE POLICE WIN

A keenly contested battle was soon before Stonecutters lost to the Chinese Police by 3 goals to 2. Smith was the best of the Gunners' attack and together with Findlay initiated some fine moves, while Gardner had his hands full in the pivot position. Hall in goal, was largely responsible for keeping the score down.

The Chinese played attractive football until they lost two of their players through injury in the second half.

Chan Kwon-yu, at left-back, played a brilliant game, while Yip Lai-yoo and Chan Wing-kan were the best of a good forward line. The Chinese Police scored first

COMPLETE LACK OF FINISH

WINNERS' DEFENCE AT THEIR BEST

STEVENS MISSES PENALTY

A STERLING defensive display in the second half of their Senior Division soccer encounter against the Rifles at the Valley yesterday, enabled St. Joseph's to inflict a surprising reverse on the hitherto triumphant military side, a goal, obtained 20 minutes after the kick-off by Leonard, being sufficient to garner maximum points.

It was the capital exhibition of the Saints' defence that was mainly responsible for their victory and unstinted praise must be awarded to this department for the magnificent way in which they repulsed the thrustful raids of the opposition forwards, particularly following the resumption, when the Rifles easily had the best of matters territorially.

Costa was a striking figure in this rearguard action, a veritable tower of strength and reliability, making every use of his advantage in height to intercept and clear with strong, good-length clearances. Souza, too, was an excellent stalwart and length clearances. Souza, too, was an excellent stalwart and length clearances. Souza, too, was an excellent stalwart and length clearances.

Elms and Omar worked incessantly and industriously and Hussain was stolid, but effective, in the middle. During the first period of the match, the Saints' attack combined prettily, but during the latter stages, when the Rifles were so much in the ascendancy, their work was confined to sporadic and individual raiding.

Although given plenty of the ball, the Rifles' attack seemed to be unable to make full use of it. In midfield and approach work they played quite satisfactorily, managing to snatch the points by and it was mainly their finishing—the most vital of all—which was wrong. They seemed to lose entirely their front-of-goal accuracy and to their weak, and badly directed shooting, must be laid the blame for their loss of the points, even allowing for the magnificent work of the Saints' defence.

Killen, on the left, was a poor substitute for Hartigan and the inside trio were very inept. Ferguson was always well covered and Campbell spoiled clever work by his slowness in parting with the ball. Easily the pick of the Rifles' attack was Erwin, but even he was far from faultless, attempting to score when colleague were better placed and expectant, waiting his inside pass.

The Rifles were best served by the halves and backs, which was just as well, because Connor did not always impress as a safe custodian.

The Saints' met with success when Leonard cleverly tricked Pickering after taking Ward's pass and sent in a curling shot well out of the reach of Connor. The Rifles had most of the second-half play, but were unable to score and when Marques saved Steven's shot from the 'penalty spot' their last chance went.

St. Joseph's:—Marques; Souza, Costa; Omar, Hussain, Elms; Castilho, Ward, Leonard, Delgado and Fernandez. Rifles:—Connor; Pickering, Stevens; McGonigal, Moore, Miller; Erwin, Campbell, Ferguson, Doherty and Killen.

through Chan Wing-kan, and Stonecutters equalised through Findlay. Another onslaught by the Police gave them the lead again through Kon Hing, but Stonecutters again equalised, through Smith. The Chinese then obtained a worthy winning goal from Chan Wing-kan.

LYEMUN AGAIN FAIL

A greatly strengthened eleven failed to provide Lyemun with their first win of the season, losing to the Rifles by 2 goals to 1 at the Valley.

Durham, an ex-Army player, and Morton were newcomers to the Gunners' team.

The outstanding feature of the early stages was the display of both defences and the excellent combination of the Gunners' forwards. Knight and Coughlan were prominent, though the latter was badly hampered on several occasions by his lack of height. Coyo, and Wilson in the defence and Boyd, in the forward line were the pick of the Rifles.

Boyd (Rifles) and Knight (Lyemun) netted in the first half, while the former gave the Rifles victory with a late goal.

A very keenly contested soccer encounter was witnessed between the two teams in a comparison.

EAST LANCES. TAKE POINTS FROM EASTERN

Odd Goal Win Not True Indication

HALVES OVER-KICK FORWARDS

The First Division soccer game at Chatham Road, where the East Lanes, entertained Eastern, provided plenty of thrilling fare, and the home team, although deservingly to win by a bigger margin, gained the points by the odd goal in three.

It was a game of fluctuating fortunes with, in the early stages particularly, the soldiers having more than their share of misfortune. To some extent, the East Lanes had only themselves to blame for not scoring more frequently, for, with a strong breeze in their favour, they adopted an unduly robust type of play and, apart from their innumerable strokes of ill-luck, there was too much overkicking between the halves and the forwards, when the ball, which did not run badly for them, might have been turned to better use.

After the fall of their goal, which, incidentally, was from a soft shot netted by Chan Ping-to following a misunderstanding, the Eastern goal was the scene of many narrow escapes, during which period Tang Yat-ming played magnificently between the posts.

Just before the interval, the East Lanes were rewarded for their efforts when Gorman equalised from a penalty. His first shot was splendidly saved by Tang Yat-kay, but from the rebound Gorman netted, but there again bad luck played its part—he was carried off with an injury.

EASY MAMAK WIN FOR RADIO

R.A.O.C. COLLAPSE IN SECOND HALF

CHOWDHURY EXCELS

The Radio Sports Club had no difficulty in beating the Royal Army Ordnance Corps by 5 goals to nil in the "B" Section of the Mamak Hockey Tournament when they met at Caroline Hill yesterday.

The outstanding player in the Radio team was Chowdhury, at inside-right, who distributed well and kept his wingers constantly on the move. Once within the circle he did not hesitate to shoot and the result was a "hat trick."

Guest was also prominent and, though he was well marked in the early stages of the game by Wykes, combined well with Kalyant Singh on his left. In defence Kitchell and Groll were good. The latter's hard hitting bore a feature of the game, while Kitchell's quick tackling often saved his side.

In the losers' team, Wykes, at centre-half, Hawkins, the right-back, and Weston, at centre-forwards, were outstanding. The team did well in the first half when they held the Radio to only one goal, but appeared to tire towards the close. Their one fault was that they did not hit the ball hard enough, the result being that intended passes were often intercepted.

Guest scored for the Radio late in the first half from a pass from Chowdhury and in the second half the latter player netted three times through good positioning and first time shooting. Guest added the other goal.

Radio:—Bocha; Kitchell and Groll; Jangeer Singh, Hassan, and Mohinder Singh; Attar Singh, Chowdhury, Guest, Kalyant Singh and Tirok Singh.

R.A.O.C.:—Drake; Price and Hawkins; Pitt, Wykes, Rand, Finch, Whyman, Weston, Shoarman and Gates.

H.K. LADIES LOSE

In a friendly hockey game on the naval ground, Happy Valley, yesterday the Central British Schoolgirls beat the Hong Kong Ladies' second team by two clear goals. Miss J. Muring and Miss M. Shann scored for the schoolgirls.

FIVE GOALS FOR FOWLER

S. A. Fowler almost recorded a double "hat trick" yesterday when the Y.M.C.A. beat the East Lanes, second eleven by 5 goals to 1 in a friendly hockey match at King's Park.

"IT WASN'T CRICKET!"

LAI WAH CUP TO-DAY

Army Should Beat Chinese

FINE GAME BETWEEN NAVY AND CIVILIANS EXPECTED

This afternoon will see the first of a series of big representative soccer games when two First Round matches in the Lai Wah Cup competition, are down for decision.

The inability of the Chinese to field a side fully representative of their strength, against the Army, has caused great disappointment, but in the other encounter, however, the Civilians and the Navy should provide soccer of a high standard on the Kowloon ground, which has been the scene of many big representative matches in the past.

The game should be a very fast one with the odds, if any, on the Civilians.

In the other game the Army should defeat the Chinese team, who will be without the majority of their best men, who will be playing against Canton for General Chiang Kai-shek's Aero-plane Fund.

Both games will be of 90 minutes' duration.

The following are the probable teams:—

Chinese:—Wong Wah-gay (South China "A"); Wong Ping (Athletic) and Mak Shui-hon (Kowloon Chinese); Leung Wing-chiu (South China "A"); Wong Mei-shun (South China "A"); Chan Hung-kwong (Kowloon Chinese); Tam Kwong-sun (Kowloon Chinese); Lai Shui-wing (South China "A"); Chan Tak-fai (South China "B"); Sung Ling-sing (Eastern); and Cheung Moon-wing (Athletic).

Navy: Longley (Midway); Hills (Broce) and Wolkerson (Rover) (Captains); Smith (Capetown); Wride (Stonecutters) and Bower (Broce); Baxter (Broce); McCleod (Regulus); Cannell (Broce); Wallace (Capetown) and Johnson (Midway).

Reserves:—Buckland (Daring) and McCall (Parthian); Army:—Rowlands (Fusiliers); Swain (East Lancs.) and Steele (East Lancs.); Taylor (Fusiliers); Campbell (Rifles) and Evans (Fusiliers); Erwin (Rifles); Sandford (East Lancs.); Ferguson (Rifles); Talbot (Fusiliers) and Ridings (East Lancs.).

Reserves:—Selleck (R.E.); Keatings (Fusiliers) and Stevens (Rifles); Moore (Rifles); Grindley (Fusiliers); Knight (R.A.); Smith (East Lancs.); Dennis (Fusiliers); Howlett (R.E.); Duffield (R.A.O.C.); Hughes (Fusiliers).

Civilians:—A. Minsham (Kowloon); C. Blackburn (Police); A. V. Gosano (Rovers); A. B. Elias (Kowloon) (Captain); N. Beltrac (Kowloon) (Vice-Captain) and E. Strang (Club); F. Fowler (Club); J. Fleming (Club); F. D. Knox (Kowloon); A. Wilson (Club) and R. I. Bickford (Club).

TWO HOCKEY TIES TO-DAY

"Y" And East Lancs. Ladies To Meet

Two hockey matches, one in the morning, between the "Y" Ladies' Juniors and the East Lancashire Ladies at Shamshupo at 11 a.m., and the other in the afternoon, a "B" Division Mamak tournament match between the K.I.T.C. "B" and Royal Corps of Signals, comprise the programme for to-day, and in each case a good game should be seen.

The K.I.T.C. "B" will probably win their match against the Signals, but will have to be at their best to take the points. The match will be played on the Marina ground, commencing at 4 p.m.

VOLUNTEERS V. ARMY

A hockey match has been arranged between the Volunteers and an Army eleven to be played to-morrow at 5.10 p.m. on the United Services Recreation Club ground. The following will represent the Volunteers: J. King; R. A. Bates; S. Chowdhury; N. Whitley; N. Beltrac; T. Whitley; B. Gosano; G. E. R. Divett (Capt.); Atwar Singh; S. Fowler; and V. Bond.

INTER-SECTION HOCKEY TOURNAMENT RE-PLAY

The Inter-Section Hockey Tournament semi-final replay between the Argonauts and the Kowloon Indians' Tennis Club will take place either next Tuesday or next Thursday, on a ground to be decided later. The final of the Tournament will probably be decided next Sunday. The Indians and Portuguese shared two goals last Thursday on the Club ground.

N.A.E. MACKAY'S XI TO MEET POLICE XI TO-MORROW

The following will represent N. A. E. Mackay's eleven in a cricket match against the Police Recreation Club, Happy Valley, at 2 p.m. sharp, to-day:—

N. A. E. Mackay, H. Ali, K. Baxter, J. A. Broadbridge, R. A. Harding, J. F. C. Mackay, W. L. Mackenzie, H. B. Neve, E. Zimmern, F. R. Zimmern, and B. D. Lay.

THIRD DIVISION GAMES THIS AFTERNOON

There is a very small League soccer programme this afternoon, and three Third Division games being featured and in each case the home teams should win, although the European Police and Recorio match will probably be very closely contested throughout.

FIRST THROUGH TRAIN IN 1911

Kowloon Terminal Completed 1916

BEACON HILL TUNNEL
COST $3,283,500

(From A Special Correspondent)

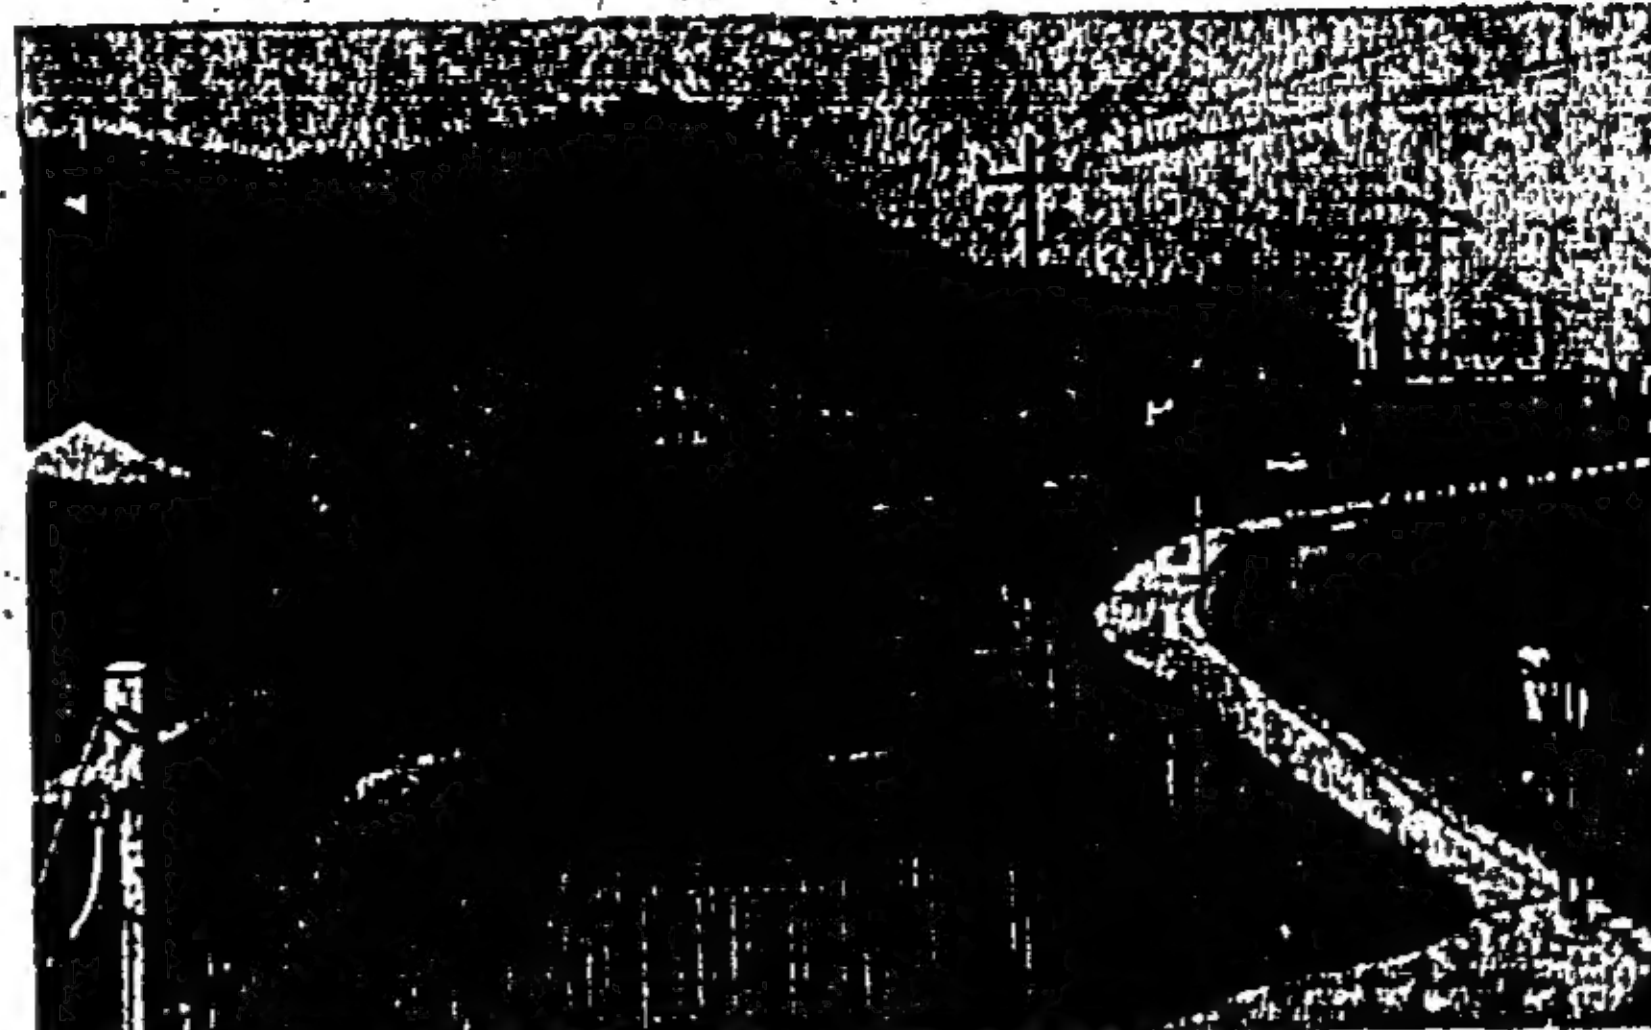

CANTON, the principal city of the province of Kwangtung, a self-administered city combining the ancient with the modern, is linked with the deep-sea port of Hong Kong by 111 miles of railway, 22 miles of which are in British territory and 89 in Chinese territory. The railway, of 4 feet 8½ inches gauge, is equipped with the most modern rolling stock of the corridor type, fitted throughout with electric light and fans.

The through express trains are the fastest in China, and accomplish the journey in less than three hours. In view of the fact that the track is single and that all expresses on their journey from Canton to Hong Kong must pick up 20 tokens en route, this is no mean accomplishment.

The British Section of the line was opened to traffic on October 1, 1910 and through traffic with Canton commenced on October 6, 1911.

The imposing terminal station at Kowloon was completed and opened to the Public on March 28, 1916.

The British Section of the line is probably the most expensive piece of railway construction in the world. The earthwork, tunnels and bridges were exceedingly heavy and all rock cuttings were made for double line. The cost of the line, exclusive of rolling stock, amounted to approximately £75,000 per mile, tunnels being responsible for £17,500 of this amount and earthwork £10,000.

Beacon Hill Tunnel, which is approximately 1½ miles in length, cost $3,283,500 or £328,000.

The amount of earthwork involved on the British Section was 3,375,000 cubic yards, or 153,000 cubic yards per mile. Of this amount, 1,100,000 cubic yards were excavated from one cutting near Hung Hom. This cutting is about 4,000 feet long and 200 feet deep at its deepest point. The line was expressly taken through a hill at this point in order to provide filling for the reclamation.

The Chinese Section cost about $12,500 per mile or one-sixth that of the British Section, earthwork accounting for approximately £2,100 of this figure. There are no tunnels on the Chinese Section and no particularly heavy works with the exception of the two bridges near Sheklung which aggregate 1,808 feet in length. The ruling grades are 1 in 100 on the British Section and 1 in 150 on the Chinese Section, and the maximum curvature is 6 degrees.

The railway workshops at Hung Hom, Kowloon, are fully equipped to deal with most repairs and to build carriages and wagons. Features of the local service on the British Section are a buffet car and a slip coach. Both these carriages are fitted up to enable them to be shopped from express trains.

The railway is kept alive by its heavy passenger traffic between the two terminal cities which averaged 3,667 per day in 1935. Goods traffic is small at present but the recent completion of the Canton-Hankow railway is expected to augment freight receipts.

A stream-lined silver and blue luxury parlour observation rail-car has recently been constructed and put into operation. This car is scheduled to perform the through journey from Hong Kong to Canton in 2½ hours. It is intended primarily for the accommodation of special tourists and other parties up to 24 in number who may wish to travel in comfort, at a fast speed and at rates which compare favourably with third class travel in England.

Punctuality is a feature of the railway. This is evidenced by the fact that during last year the 1,796 through express trains between Canton and Hong Kong averaged less than one minute late each.

The Taiipo Belle, above, made a record run of 135 minutes to Canton on October 14 last. ("Herald" photo).

"Has she kept her girlish figure?" "Kept it? Man, she has doubled it."

A Scots family lived in the flat above. Many friends called and the dances were held nearly every night.

"Doesn't all that dancing disturb you?" asked a friend of the man below.

"No," the man replied. "When we want to stop their dancing, all we do is turn off our radio."

Business is generally quiet with the man who keeps quiet about his business.

"Late"

KEEP THOSE OLD TYRES! RETREADING IS LESS THAN HALF OF NEW TYRES COST!

Even if the treads of your tyres are worn out, the tyres themselves have thousands of miles of useful life left. New tyres cost real money these days and FULL-CIRCLE RETREADING gives you the same value at less than half the cost. But it must be FULL-CIRCLE RETREADING. This is the only satisfactory and lasting method.

FULL-CIRCLE RETREADING means that treads of fresh live rubber are put on the carcass of your old tyres by the same process that tyre manufacturers use. Retreading by the Full-Circle method ensures that the retreading is done in one complete piece, and not in 'portions', thereby eliminating Pounding, Wobbling and other faults so common in the usual retreads. What is more there is Guaranteed New Tyre Mileage to be had by the Full Circle Process.

Tyres ranging from 3.25 to 9.00 in size can be FULL CIRCLE RETREADED at prices from $7.00 each. Phone either of our service stations and ask our representative to call. And Remember The Hong Kong Tyre Co. is the only firm in Hong Kong to carry out FULL-CIRCLE RETREADING.

FULL CIRCLE RETREADING SAVES 50% OF NEW TYRE COST WITH GUARANTEED NEW TYRE MILEAGE.

Active Work By Local Business Men

LARGE SUM GATHERED IN SMALL SUBSCRIPTIONS

Messrs. Lau King Tsing and Chan Lau Fong, Joint Chairmen of the Chung Sing Benevolent Society as well as Joint Chairmen of the General Chamber of Commerce and Industry of the Tung Kun District, besides helping the Chinese Chamber of Commerce to collect subscriptions for Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's birthday aeroplane fund and in addition having made handsome personal donations, were also responsible for the door-to-door canvassing for the same purpose, under the name of the Chung Sing Benevolent Society, with over 100 men and women going round the whole of Hong Kong and Kowloon for six days from the 14th to the 20th instant, as a result of which no less than $10,208.40, mostly made up of small sums in 10 cents pieces and $1 notes, was gathered. This includes $2,441.47 collected by the film stars on 14th and 15th inst.

At the close of each day's work Messrs. Lau and Chan entertained the canvassers at meals, at the Tung Yuen Cafe on the first day and at the Silver Dragon Restaurant on the remaining evenings, thus spending over $500 from their own pockets. All travelling expenses, in Hong Kong and Kowloon, were also borne by these two public-spirited men, without their getting a refund either from the Chung Sing Benevolent Society or deducting the expenses from the subscription.

GUARD YOUR HEALTH DURING CHANGING SEASONS

BRIGHT Autumn sunshine—sudden changes—cool evenings make tricky times for normal health. With changing seasons many people find health a problem, and Autumn usually brings its crop of attacks in the form of colds and sore throats. For quick relief from colds 'ASPRO' has fulfilled all claims made for it, and if taken according to the directions it not only quickly ends a cold—it smashes further developments in the form of influenza, and prevents many days laying up in bed. If taken as a gargle according to the direction on the leaflet in the packet 'ASPRO' gives astonishing relief in a very short while. 'The reason why 'ASPRO' is so valuable for colds, sore throats, and many conditions of illness is because, after ingestion in the system, it is a powerful germicide, and is anti-pyretic—anti-periodic, and anti-fermentative. 'ASPRO' does not harm the heart, and its standard of purity conforms to the British Pharmacopoeia, the guiding authority of the Medical Profession.

'ASPRO'

WILL QUICKLY END A COLD and ARREST Influenza Developments.

Stubborn Cold Goes — PROOF!

Dear Sir,
I thank you for your kind interest in directing me to the certain way to effect a cure to the nasty COLD with which I had been battling for three weeks, ending which time I had tried so many other infallible remedies that I was beginning to feel that I was a lost case. On Thursday last I carried out your advice to the letter, and I do hereby believe the fact that on Saturday morning I woke up with no cold left, nor did I feel any ill effects from the 'ASPRO' which I have used. I am relieved of my headache, and I can say positively that your assurance that 'ASPRO' would break up a Cold or the 'flu' in 24 hours is the direction was properly observed, has been conclusively proven. Yours faithfully,

STAINCH BELIEVER IN 'ASPRO' NOW—SCEPTICAL AT FIRST!

Dear Sir,
I think 'ASPRO' Tablets for warding off influenza from my little boy, aged nine, as well as their use as a reliever in his case, who was taken to hospital with double pneumonia, while we were getting colds, but stopped them with 'ASPRO' and nothing else. For Mr. Williams is a staunch advocate for 'ASPRO' the first day of a cold. I have used 'ASPRO' of a few days ago, and the good luck has been mine. Yours faithfully,

Collective Antagonism

IT has often been said by the cynic that there are no quarrels like family quarrels. When antagonism has once arisen there is a source of irritation in the very necessity of meeting a brother on those terms of familiarity from which no member of a family can escape when there is so much mutual understanding as there is between brothers. It looks very much as if the impulse towards brotherhood which was the world's reaction to four years of hostility, had had the effect of creating the sort of relationship that exists among brothers who are engaged in disputing the terms of a parental will. And one aspect of the Spanish civil war seems to be making the round of the countries that stood neutral during the war of 20 years ago. The former antagonists have quarrelled enough in all conscience, but memories were too fresh to allow them to come to blows, and even now though their representatives use threats of thunder, a point is soon reached when they realise that their peoples would not support them in launching a thunderbolt. The former neutrals have the same restlessness, without the same reason for restraint.

Taking a detached view of the condition of Europe — what one might call a Hong Kong view — what has been the result of the attempt to work together in the League which was formed to promote world peace? It would be worse than useless to enumerate once again the particular occasions of failure, to which the reply always is an enumeration of the occasions of success. If there were an even balance there would still be room for a consideration of the effect on the world's way of thinking, the way that current events strike the imagination of the ordinary man, who does not follow his national politics, and still less the ins and outs of diplomacy, with any regular attention. He does not look on the League as a solvent, but as a cause, of friction. Never before was the fact that war is the ultima ratio of the relationships between States so firmly underlined. Nobody could deny that in the cases of Abyssinia, nothing but war would have been effective. The hope that some economic substitute could be devised has been discarded, and the only question now asked is: "If the League should adjudge that a country is an aggressor, what force are you going to supply to discipline him?" The very poor response to such an enquiry, when actually put recently, has made the united voice of the 52 nations of the League immensely weaker than the decisions of the old Concert of Europe that kept the peace for the 20 years or so before the war through such decisions, however slow and inadequate, had no element of bluff about them.

But that is not the whole of the indictment. It is obvious enough that Abyssinia was not helped, but only damaged by the League. Had it not existed it is not likely that Abyssinia would have fought at all. For 50 years there have from time to time been incidents like the Un-Ual fight for which compensation and an apology were accepted. It does not appear at all likely that Il Duce had any intention of conquering the whole country. The apparently inexplicable gaucherie of M. Laval and Sir Samuel Hoare was due to negotiations from which it was clear that Mussolini would have been quite content with a slice of territory adding to the existing Italian colonies. But this would have been a departure from the logical deductions to be made from the Covenant. Finally, but for the continuance of sanctions, he would have been content with a protectorate a good deal short of annexation. And the fact that several of the members States continued to trade surreptitiously with Italy showed that not even a pledge was effective. Probably all the accusations of supplying either side in Spain are quite true. Having proved that they cannot co-operate in doing anything the nations have now proved that they cannot co-operate in doing nothing.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The engagement is announced between Peter Cyril, son of Mrs. M. Jackson and the late Mr. J. W. Jackson, of Alwoodly, near Leeds, England, and Violet May, daughter of Mrs. Mitchell and the late Mr. R. C. Mitchell of Hong Kong.

Hong Kong Personalities

Continuing the exclusive series of sketches of leading Colony residents by Mr. A. S. Kony, the talented Hungarian artist.

OUR personality this week is Mr. J. M. da Rocha, the well-known local merchant and Consul for Costa Rica.

Mr. da Rocha was born in Hong Kong and also received his education in the Colony at St. Joseph's College. After the completion of his studies he joined the firm of William Meyrick and Co. and remained with that firm until 1917, when he founded his own export and import business. The firm prospered and in the course of time he extended his activities to the United States, opening branches in New York and San Francisco. Due to the present adverse business conditions, however, these branches are now closed temporarily.

Mr. da Rocha, who was appointed Consul for Costa Rica in 1925, has travelled extensively as his business activities have taken him to all parts of the world, but still he has found time to take an active interest in the affairs of the local Portuguese Community. He was founder and president of Club de Recreio, and is one of the oldest members of Club Lusitano. At one time he was a keen cricketer, playing for Club Recreio, but at present his favourite sport is racing, being the owner of one of the larger racing stables and the oldest living member of the Jockey Club. His pony Lady Love would probably have won the Derby but for its jockey, Mr. D. M. Halmovitch, unfortunately losing his whip at the crucial moment.

THE PASSING HOUR

BY A.N.M.

THE arrival of the first trans-Pacific Clipper is certainly a day that will be added to the important dates of Hong Kong annals. How much it will mean in the end only time will show, but there was a real danger that while we were bargaining with the focal situation of Hong Kong as an inducement to secure concessions in other parts of the world we came near to being left out of these big schemes altogether. There is not the slightest reason to suppose that the opinions of the Hong Kong public had anything to do with the final arrangement, but there was a feeling with which we have expressed our agreement more than once, that the only sound principle was to apply to air navigation the same system that has served so well for shipping—equal access and equal treatment for all. There will be plenty of time for bargaining. Such negotiations are always going on, even in regard to transport by sea and by land. The established port is in a better and not a weaker position from the fact that it has been found to be convenient.

LORD ROTHERMERE

NATURALLY the same warm welcome that is extended to every notable visitor was given to the controller of the Daily Mail, and we shall no doubt see some results of his brief glimpse at the Far East. The interesting question is, what will they be? Our visitor belongs to a small group of men that first became prominent in America, where the social conditions were even more favourable to them than they have ever been in England — an enormous class of people that can read, without the wider education that would enable them to criticise what they read, and without the habit of doing so. An immense opportunity of expressing opinions, created by the pervasiveness of general news, without any particular opinions to express, leads to the stultic policy, the advocacy of anything that is sensational and likely to be popular, subject to the condition that what does not turn out to be popular may be quietly dropped if it turns out not to be popular. These big newspaper combinations run simply as business enterprises are the most striking instances of power without responsibility that there have ever been. The cable, the printing press, the machinery of distribution, all combine to make another example of what Sir Josiah Stamp, in his address as President of the British Association, recently drew attention to, the rapidity of the progress of science and the dangerous interval between scientific improvements and the moral force required to direct and control it.

PUBLIC OPINION

DICTATORIAL control, such as is now exercised over most of Europe, would be no solution in New York or London. The censorship during the war had only the result of turning the word "official" from meaning a guarantee of accuracy into a term of derision. So soon as there is a suspicion that information is being suppressed there is a lively impulse to discover what it is, and the interval of concealment is never very long. The most damaging complaint against the papers controlled by Lord Rothermere and the other Press Lords is that their news and the method of their presentation is tendentious. The presentment is the proprietor's own concern, but the old tradition that the editor and the sub-editor should work in watertight compartments gave a feeling of confidence in the comment, even when the speech that was verbally reported contained better sense than the leading article that maintained an opposite view. Public opinion is based partly on tradition, and partly on conversation. One of the most mysterious things is the rapidity with which the views of the well-informed filters through to those who do no systematic reading. Certain it is that a word or two from a friend will outweigh columns of print. This point was not made by the debaters at the Wah Yan College who voted that the Press had more influence than the Cinema, but a further point that might have been made was that what has influence in the Cinema is often the Newsreel rather than the "feature," and that when the "feature" has influence it is often incidental, as in the background of the picture rather than in anything that is said. The moral is the same — that anyone who wants to form the opinions of the public of to-day should be accurate in his facts and leave the inferences to his public.

SUBVENTIONS

LORD Rothermere's recommendation that trade in the Far East should be saved by direct financial assistance from the British Exchequer is typical of the sort of popular nostrum that attracts only so long as one does not look all round it. England needs an enormous revenue to meet the costs of a whopping national debt and a couple of million unemployed, in addition to all the old expenditures, and the taxation tends to increase the cost of living and of production. Beginning with the beet subsidy, which costs more every year, agriculture receives several subsidies. Factories have been wholly or partially exempted from rates. The "scrap and build" subsidy helps the tramp industry, and so on. Where is the money to come from if ordinary trade, carried on for profit, is also to have public assistance? All these proposals provoke retaliation, as is shown by the Australasian movement to retaliate for the American restriction of coastal trade. And who is to be the ultimate payer? Why should those who are not engaged in Oriental trade pay for those who are? Germany is as far away as England; why then should German trade be gaining much of what we lose? Failure to hold our own in the world market is a big and intricate problem, but there is no use producing pills to cure earthquakes.

(Extracts from the Sunday Herald of October 25, 1931.)

Messrs. Chau and Chau's Good Day (Mr. Benham) won the Pad-dock Plate at the Extra Race Meeting yesterday and paid $506.60 for a win.

In the Interport Cricket trial game on the Club ground yesterday G. R. Sayer was top scorer with 59 not out, while F. Goodwin, with 3 for 26, was the most successful bowler.

In spite of a "hat trick" by Howe, the Hong Kong Football Club were beaten by 4 goals to 3 by Kowloon in the First Division of the Football League. Bliss, McKelvie, Dowman and Hedley scored for Kowloon.

Wild Men Of Borneo

"BORNEO" to the average person at home conjures up "Wild Man" and the sophisticated are quietly amused at the idea that a Malay or Dayak could be considered wild, writes W. B. in Mirage, published at Miri, Sarawak. And yet within two score miles of Miri you can meet a race who are probably as primitive as any in the world.

The Penan really is a "Wild Man." He is not savage by any means; on the contrary he is very timid, but he lives as close to nature as Adam did.

A nomadic race, these jungle people have no houses (though a few have been induced to settle down in one or two districts) and just roam the forests finding food or shelter wheresoever they can.

They live by hunting and will eat more or less anything edible—that is to say, crocodile, snakes, pigs and a hundred and one jungle roots and leaves, of which they have an unsurpassed knowledge.

Offensive Weapons

The Penan's weapons consist in these days of a knife and blow-pipe, which he procures by barter on rare visits to a Kayan house, and he is astonishingly accurate with the latter. There are certain jungle trees, the sap of which is a deadly poison, and the Penan makes use of this sap to dip his darts in. Some of these darts mean death in a matter of seconds.

As soon as the quarry is brought down it is prepared for eating by the women. Sometimes food is taken raw and sometimes cooked over an open fire, but nothing is left to go bad, even if it takes a couple of days to consume. You never know when your next meal is going to be if you're a Penan!

And jungle roots or wild sago is not very sustaining fare if there is no pig or snake steak to go with it!

Being homeless wanderers the Penans keep nothing in the way of domestic animals beyond hunting dogs and an occasional pet such as a monkey or pig, and they are on the move the whole time, never settling for more than a couple of days in one place.

Not Immodest

There is in addition very little real family life, for they live very promiscuously. They are not immodest people really, though often completely naked for days, but nudity in the jungle is a thing of little account.

The women usually attach themselves to some man for varying periods—maybe a day or two, perhaps a month or a year—and in consequence it is seldom a Penan knows who his father is.

These people, of whom we know very little at present, are slowly being brought in by the more civilised races which surround them, and they now meet representatives of the Government at certain intervals and barter jungle produce for tobacco, knives, blowpipes and such-like articles; but they cannot stand the heat of houses and infinitely prefer to be out in the jungle.

Mainly about WOMEN

Men Girls Marry

THE Sphinx was a poor fish. Her whole fortune depended on putting unanswerable riddles; yet she asked the most perfectly simple ones; so that, when Hercules came along and she asked him, "What is it that walks on four legs at morning, on two at noon, and on three in the evening," Hercules solved the problem without turning a hair, and she was undone. It was a man, of course — he crawls as a babe, walks erect in his hey-day, and hobbles along with a stick in the eve of life.

Now if the Sphinx had been really clever, she would have said:

"Tell me, Hercules, why do we marry the men we do?"

And the odds are ten to one that Hercules would never have got those golden apples. It was a priceless opportunity lost, for the riddle remains as obscure to-day as it was when Hercules gained the reputation of having brains as well as brawn, and St. George slew the dragon (and all for the sake of chivalry!)

Why do we marry the men we do? What is it that shoulders into the unattainable, the magnificent men we dream about when young? The St. Georges, the Don Juans, and the Robert Montgomeries?

Why is it that —
Plain girls marry handsome men?

Beautiful girls marry ugly men?

Tall girls marry short men?

Clever girls marry fools?

Fools marry professors?

Outdoor girls marry indoor men?

Bookworms marry footballers?

And hikers marry men with fallen arches?

In short, why are most married couples so ill-assorted?

Scandal About The Spratts

I have been in a quandary about this ever since I was a baby thing, and determined to marry a soldier (or was it a sailor? — whoever it was, it was someone romantic). The problem was first presented to me by nurse, who told me that amusing piece of scandal about the Spratts.

Jack Spratt would eat no fat,
His wife would eat no lean...
I remember thinking, "How perfectly incongruous!" What a perfectly ridiculous match the Spratts' was. Yet, ever since those supposititious days, Jack Spratts and Jill Mackerella have been plighting their troths. All of which adds to my bewilderment.

There is Millicent. Millicent liked climbing mountains, riding wild horses, lassoing steers, and all those sorts of things. She married Richard, who loved his silkworms and hated climbing mountains, and all those sorts of things. And so, whenever there was a mountain to be climbed, there were Richard's silkworms requiring mulberry leaves. During the honeymoon it did not matter so much, for there were other things to occupy their minds, and the mountains, or the silkworms, took it in turn to do without Millicent, or Richard and the mulberry leaves. But then Millicent and Richard began to see in each other the incongruities which had been hidden before, and they began to fight like brigands.

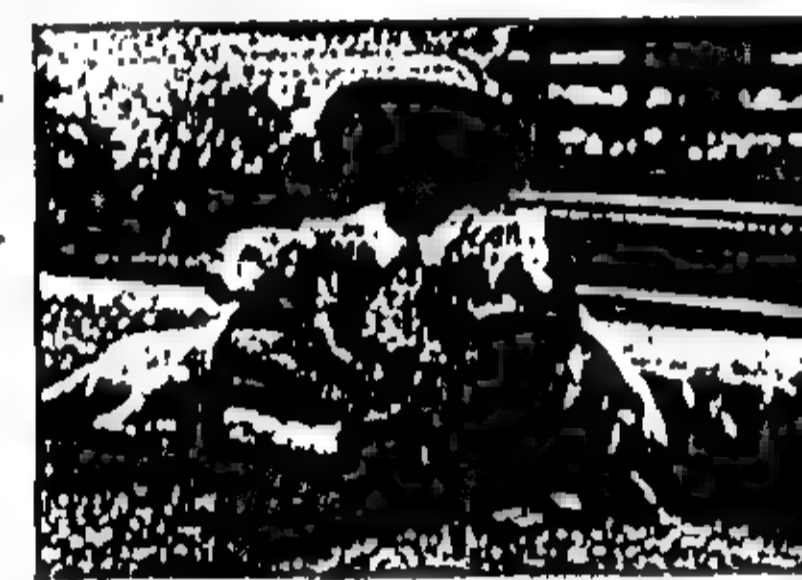

And so they got divorced.
And so they lived happily ever after.

And Master Cupid grinned maliciously and pointed another dart.

Everywhere ill-assorted couples. The Thicks and Thins, the Longs and Shorts, the Brights and Grims — and Mabel and Beau. Mabel is my girl friend. She dreamed of a man as dark as Gabriel, but Beau is fair; she dreamed of one as strong as Atlas, but Beau is slim; she dreamed of one as stern as Jove, but Beau is tender.

About TOWN

LAST week definitely ushered in the season of activity, and all those who have been consulting their doctors about what to do when you don't want to do anything feel once again that life is worth living. It is rather quaint that while we have a word for animals that sleep during the winter—hibernating—we have no word at all for those who sleep in the summer, like ourselves. The summer sleep only seems to be assisted and not disturbed, by bathing, and we have no imitators of the Spartans who bathe all the year round in the Serpentine, even when they have to break the ice to get a foot into the water. It is rather sad, by the way, to reflect that when the next bathing season opens we shall be debarred from the most attractive beach of all, the Stanley Beach. What is the connection between the opening of the new year and the closing of the beach? Is it to be reserved for the prisoners or the staff?

The Football Season

TO judge by the crowds that not only filled the stands but blackened the tops of the surrounding hills for the Royal Ulster Rifles—South China Athletic match—to say nothing of the other games—the football season will not lack for interest and enthusiasm, but it has yet to be seen whether the crack team will hold its own without the redoubtable Lee Wai-tong. Very few of our contemporaries could equal his record—as for instance in Australia—in goals scored, but he deserves public recognition even more for the consistently high ideals of play he has always taught and practised. The recent tour in Europe of the Olympic team had a very good effect on public opinion, and there is no one that can step into his shoes. A word of advice from him about charging and tripping would save the referee a good deal of whistling, and raise the reputation of the China team even higher than it is now.

The "All-in" Racket

TALKING about sport reminds one of its contrary. All sports are governed by rules of which the object is to give the advantage to strength and skill while avoiding any unnecessary pain or injury. The so-called "all-in" wrestling is not sport at all, for it is simply a system of inflicting as much pain as possible on the opponent, and making the utmost of every advantage. The fact that exhibitions of this revolting form of contest have been allowed elsewhere amounts to very little justification.

A Queensberry Rules Boxing match involves some hard knocks, and "Cumberland" wrestling is a severe strain, but these things are genuine sport. Have the authorities ever witnessed the "all-in" racket?

The Aeroplane Gifts

HOW exactly is one to interpret this enthusiasm for presenting Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek with aeroplanes? There has never been such a rush of eager subscribers for any cause, however deserving, and it now appears that no less than three planes will be given. We yield to no one in recognition of the splendid service he has rendered to China, and hope he will go on to further successes. But why aeroplanes? The aeroplane is today the most effective weapon of offence. The fiercest controversy of the moment in Europe arises out of the gift of planes by Italy and Germany to General Franco in Spain, and the allegation that Russia has been generous in the same way to the Spanish Government. Are all the Budget debates wrong about hard times? If three lakhs of dollars can be subscribed in a few days there must be quite a lot of loose money lying about somewhere. And are the donors citizens of Hong Kong or not? There is not a good cause in the Colony that is not languishing for lack of funds, from the University downwards, and there is the certainty that the money would be well used. Aeroplanes, on the other hand, have already, and quite recently, been the ostensible object of large expenditure in Canton, and what is there to show for the cash today?

Methods Of Spending

SHOULD there be any further reservoirs of loose money lying around, we suggest that those who have the control of it might benefit both themselves and some of their less wealthy fellow-citizens by laying out some of it in the purchase of a few of the pictures now to be seen at the Gloucester Hotel, painted by Chinese artists. On Friday there was opened a show of the work of Mr. Lee Bon, who went from Canton to the Toronto School of Art, and carried all before him, having some of his work accepted by the National Gallery at Ottawa. Another Toronto-trained painter who shows his work at the same place is Mr. Lee Byng, whose water-colours of local scenes are very attractive. And next week another champion of Western style art, our old friend Mr. Luis Chan, is showing his recent work. The price of two aeroplanes would have endowed a school of art for Hong Kong that would have enriched our local life and culture for generations.

Sports Chatter

Rodrigues Due Back
DR. A. M. Rodrigues, who captained the successful University cricket team in the League during the 1933-34 season and who left for Europe last year to pursue post-graduate studies in Lisbon and England, is expected to return to the Colony early next month.

Anderson To Play For K.C.C.
DONALD Anderson, who formerly skippered the University cricket team and who won Interport honours, is also expected to return to the Colony at the end of the month. He will probably play for the Kowloon Cricket Club this season.

Useful Cricketer In Making
OMAR Abdul-Rahmin, who is at Queen's College, is looked upon by his masters as a cricketer of the greatest promise. He plays with a very straight bat and is a stylist, but, like most lads of his age, he is always too eager to get the runs. He is being taken in hand by Mr. T. E. Yeoh, the former University captain and who is now on the teaching staff at Queen's College, and should go quite far in local cricket.

Bowls At The K.F.C.
THE work in connection with the building of a lawn bowls green at the Kowloon Football Club is making progress, and the two cement hard-courts which formerly occupied the site have now been demolished. The new turf should be laid within the next two months.

Popularising Winter-Swimming
SUBJECT to the approval of the Board of Directors, I hear that there is a scheme afoot to open the European Y.M.C.A. Swimming pool to recognised swimming clubs of the Colony during the winter months at a special charge, which will be determined later. This is a very big step towards popularising winter-swimming in the Colony in the only heated pool in South China.

Arjan Singh Goes North
ARJAN Singh, one of the Indian wrestlers who was recently seen in the Colony, has left for Shanghai, where he proposes to take on all-comers, including Jagat Singh, one of the best known "bone-crackers" in the Far East.

Press Soccer Match?
THERE is a possibility that a Press soccer eleven will meet the H.K. Referees' Association in the very near future. Mr. Lee Wai-tong, China's leader soccer star and captain of the All-China Olympic team, has promised to referee.

Sykes Will Be Missed
N. SYKES, who plays soccer for the Club Juniors, left the Colony for home last Saturday by the s.s. Rawalpindi. Sykes was a fine full-back and very rarely missed a junior division game last season, except through injuries.

Salute Weakened
R. H. WONG, the St. Andrew's hockey player, is at present in the Hong Kong Sanatorium, and will not be seen on the hockey field for some time.

Rifles' Ladies' Hockey Team
MRS. R. Campbell, the representative of the Rifles Ladies on the committee of the Hong Kong Ladies' Hockey Association, was largely instrumental in raising a team from the Ladies of the Battalion while it was in Egypt. She was not seen on the hockey field last season.

Engineers Depleted
THE Engineers' Second Division football team will be practically broken up when the troopship leaves in January. No less than seven of the present team will be leaving! Howlett and Hurst are among the few who will be remaining for another year.

Tribute To Lt. Chaplin
VIRTUE is said to be its own reward, but few footballers in the Colony realise the many hours of hard work done by Lieut. C. Chaplin on behalf of the Football Association and for the good of football in Hong Kong. He was largely instrumental in arranging the League fixtures to the satisfaction of all concerned, and this, in itself, is no easy task.

Fusmasol's Fine Feat
L/CPL. Fusmasol, of the Rifles, did exceedingly well to reach the final of the Army doubles championship with Bugler Stevens. He only took up tennis this year.

By the Judge

Promising Bataman
GEORGE Kew, the young son of Dr. F. H. Kew, is developing into a good all-round cricketer. He is being coached by Jimmy Young-naye at the Diocesan Boys' School, where he is regarded as one of their best batmen.

Open Snooker Tourney
SNOOKER enthusiasts in the Colony will be interested to learn that an Open Snooker Championship will be run shortly, following closely on the open billiards championships, senior and junior sections, which will be held within a month or so.

Inter-Club Billiards
AT a recent meeting of the Hong Kong Amateur Billiards Association, it was decided that friendly matches between the different billiards clubs in the Colony will be staged during the winter, and if this experiment should prove successful a League will be organised next year.

Kwok Turns To Bowls
F. H. KWOK, the well-known F.C.R.C. tennis and badminton player, has recently taken a very keen interest in lawn-bowls, which he intends playing next year in the League.

Cricket At C.R.C.
IF they are able to raise a team, the Chinese Recreation Club are contemplating playing a few friendly cricket matches this season.

Girl Guide Qualifiers
W. L. CLARK, the former Police and Colony Interport football goalkeeper, recently held swimming tests at the Victoria Recreation Club for the Girl Guides. Freda Johnstone (1st Kowloon), Eva Churn and Dora Turner (2nd Kowloon), Marjorie Parsons (1st H.K.) and Sophia Tai (2nd H.K.) all qualified for the Swimmer's badge.

Life-Saving Tests At V.R.C.
THE 1st Kowloon Troop, Girl Guides, have reason to be proud of three of their members, Peggy Crookdale, Betty Park and Audrey Martin, all of whom passed the Life Saver's and Swimmer's tests held at the Victoria Recreation Club.

K.I.T.C. Hockey Recruit
THE K.I.T.C.'s latest hockey recruit is Sirwan Singh, who will represent them on the right wing.

Bad Luck On Police
THE Police will have to do without their hockey custodian, J. E. Jessop, for at least a month, as he is laid up with diphtheria.

SHARE MARKET REPORT

QUIET DURING THE WEEK

BUT CLOSSES FIRM

The following report on the Hong Kong Share market is supplied by Mr. C. A. L. Rickett, Secretary of the H. K. Sharebrokers' Association:

"The Local market has been quiet and uninteresting during the early part of the week, but a firmer undertone developed later and the market closed firm. China Lights were in demand at $14.70 for cash and $15 for December delivery. Cements were in demand at $11 1/4 for cash and $12 for December. Trams eased off during the week but at the close buyers came forward at $11.85. There were enquiries for Telephones (Old) at $29.

"The Philippine Gold Mining section has remained dull throughout the week, but a rather firmer undertone prevails at the close. Mineral Resources and Paracale Gold were perhaps the outstanding features, the former improving from 45 to 55 centavos and the latter from 42 to 52 centavos. Demonstrations recovered from 95 centavos to P. 1:10, but closed at P. 1:05."

GEN. CHIANG'S SON ON WAY TO GERMANY

Canton, Yesterday.—Among the passengers for Europe by the s.s. Potsdam yesterday was Mr. Chiang Hui-kwok, the second son of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, on his way to Germany to undergo military training there. Our Own Correspondent.

It appears that they went to the flat, the residence of Messrs. W. Tansley, a Police Reservist, and R. F. Souza, and there assaulted Mr. Tansley. Souza answered Tansley's calls for assistance and the two set about the soldiers. A telephone message was sent to No. 2 Police Station and Detective-Inspector Dowman soon arrived on the scene and took the soldiers to the Military Hospital.

Third Sonata Recital

Fine Series Brought To An End

The series of Sonata Recitals given by Prue Lewis and Maurice Barton at the Helena May Institute came to a close with a splendid concert on Friday last.

One might have expected that the high standard which had been set in the two previous recitals could not have been maintained, but this was far from being the case. It has seemed that at each succeeding recital the playing has improved, and certainly it was of a very high order on Friday.

The recital opened with the Brahms Sonata in A. The movements—Allegro amabile, Andante tranquillo, Allegretto grazioso—demand the utmost flexibility from both performers, and yet the Sonata's constantly shifting tonality requires careful treatment if the listener is to obtain a clear picture of the whole work. This produced some admirable playing—and, after all, we have come to expect, in the last five weeks, a finished performance from the Lewis-Barton ensemble.

Schubert Songs

Next we had four Schubert songs—Das Wandern; Wohin?; Der Neugierige; Mein—sung by the Rev. W. H. Baines in a thoroughly artistic manner, with excellent diction. The singer gave the impression that in singing in German he knew what he was singing about—an impression too frequently absent from performances in an alien tongue. The Rev. Mr. Baines has a very pleasant baritone voice; a slight lack of resonance was probably due to the low ceiling of the room.

The first half of the programme was brought to a close with two violin solos—Andantino by Martini, and Prælude and Allegro by Pugnani, both arranged by Kreisler. We have all heard Prue Lewis play these before, but certainly never better than on this occasion. These were followed by

QUARREL AT A FLAT

Soldiers Removed To Hospital

Privates Cook and Hunt of the Worcestershire Regiment, attached to the Royal Ulster Rifles, and L/Bdr. Mills, of the Royal Artillery, were removed to the Military Hospital early yesterday morning suffering from head injuries sustained during a fight at No. 22 Johnston Road, second floor, at 3 o'clock yesterday morning.

It appears that they went to the flat, the residence of Messrs. W. Tansley, a Police Reservist, and R. F. Souza, and there assaulted Mr. Tansley. Souza answered Tansley's calls for assistance and the two set about the soldiers. A telephone message was sent to No. 2 Police Station and Detective-Inspector Dowman soon arrived on the scene and took the soldiers to the Military Hospital.

an encore—Brahms' Walts in A Major.

The second part of the programme opened with four more songs in German—this time by Schumann: Du bist wie eine Blume, Ich Grolle Nicht, Die Lotosblume und Wussten's die Blumen. Again we had that sense of calm artistry and security in the knowledge of the songs; also some very pleasant pianissimo singing.

Cesar Frank

The final item—and possibly the goal to which the performers had been working through the series—was the Cesar Franck Sonata in A Major.

I suppose practically everyone can claim a nodding (or should it be "listening") acquaintance with this work, but I am sure that only a few listeners know just how many notes the pianist has to embrace. Definitely the difficulties are ungrateful. Maurice Barton gave a very creditable rendering of so difficult a work. Prue Lewis was excellent.

The Sonata reminds one very strongly of Cesar Franck's Organ Chorales, and its curious harmonies and frequent unexpected modulations call to mind the story told of the composer, when, as a young student taking an examination at the Paris Conservatoire, he not only performed the sight-reading test without a mistake, but also transposed it into another key! For this piece of brilliant musicianship he failed to obtain his diploma.

This Sonata was an excellent choice for the concluding of the series, and the listeners departed with the strains of the "Canon" lingering in their minds.

The Rev. W. H. Baines was accompanied by E. O'Neill Shaw in his usual reliable manner, in spite of a little difficulty with some recalcitrant bass notes on the piano. Altogether a very delightful series, and Hong Kong should be grateful to artists capable of such uplifting performances.

ALLEGED THEFT BY FINDING

Valuable Watch Lost
On Golf Links

CADDIE AND COOK IN TROUBLE

Keung Ling-ngau, a golf caddy, was yesterday morning charged before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy with the theft by finding of a gold and platinum watch valued at $300 and a gold ring on the Deep Water Bay golf course on Thursday, the property of Mrs. A. Pinet, while Yung Man-kan, a cook at the Club, was charged with receiving same.

The first defendant said that he picked up the articles late at night and intended to return them to the owner when she came back. The second defendant said that he was given the watch to be kept until the complainant came back.

Sub-Inspector Dredge said that the watch and ring were dropped at the fourth hole when the lady took off her sweater. After playing a few more holes she realised her loss and retraced her steps in an endeavour to find the articles.

No being able to do so, she reported the matter at the Club, and everyone, including members, caddies and employees of the Club, were then informed.

On the following day Mr. Pinet went to play over the Happy Valley course and was told by a caddy that the first defendant had been seen with the watch the previous night. Mr. Pinet took the caddy with him to Deep Water Bay, and the first defendant admitted he had found the watch and asked a small boy to get it from the second defendant. This was done, and the jewellery was returned to the complainant.

Asked if he had any evidence against the second defendant, Inspector Dredge said that the loss was known by everyone in the Club and it seemed that the defendant, knowing this, should have tried to seek the owner or have handed it over to the person responsible for receiving lost property at the Club.

The case was adjourned till next Thursday at 11.30 a.m.

of the Public Works Department, will be interested to learn that she returned to the Colony last Thursday, after having been away for some months. They have taken up residence in Dina House again.

From Here And There In Hong Kong

Miss Joan Massey, who came down to the Colony with the Shanghai Club tennis team, but who remained behind for a short holiday here after the other members of the team had returned to Shanghai, left last Tuesday night by the s.s. President Pierce. She was the guest of Miss Audrey Steele while here.

Mr. G. G. N. Tinson, the well-known local solicitor and member of the legal firm of Messrs. Johnson Stokes and Master, is due back in the Colony early in the New Year. He is at present spending a holiday in England, and news received from him recently was to the effect that he was having a very nice time.

Mr. Erling Bache, the well-known Danish journalist, who has been on a visit to the Colony for the past two months, left the Colony yesterday for Singapore. While here Mr. Bache took the opportunity of visiting Canton and Macau, as well as making the trip to Manila.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. B. de Silva, of No. 1 Austin Avenue, Kowloon, left the Colony last Wednesday by the s.s. President Copridge on a vacation to Manila.

Mr. H. C. Best, formerly connected with the Domestic Engineers Ltd., will, it is understood, soon be leaving the Colony to take up an appointment with a firm in the Straits Settlements.

Capt. V. Petherick, who is on the outdoor staff of the Hong Kong and Kowloon Wharf and Godown Company, Ltd., is due to return to the Colony from home leave early in the New Year. Rumour has it that when he returns, Mr. Miller, of the same firm, will go on vacation.

Professor Knipp, who is attached to the Physics Department at Lingnan University, spent a short holiday in the Colony during the week and said he thoroughly enjoyed his stay here. He is looking forward to coming down here again during the Christmas or New Year vacation.

Dr. Y. K. Ng, of the Kowloon Hospital, is due to leave anytime now, but he states that he will not be going away just yet.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Peratta are two visitors from Manila who are at present spending a holiday in the Colony and they like it so much here that they have decided to stay for about a month. Mr. Peratta, who is the Superintendent of Prisons in Manila, stated in an interview that he is hoping to write a book in the very near future.

Dr. J. Monticola, from Manila, is in the Colony at the moment, having made the trip here to visit his children who are in school in the Colony. He is staying at the Gloucester Hotel and will, it is understood, be here for a few weeks.

The Rev. Fr. A. Grasselli, of the Society of Foreign Missions of Milan and the head of the Chinese newspaper Kwai Koo Po, returned to the Colony last Tuesday. It will be recalled that he left for Italy in March last year, on sick leave.

Mr. R. V. D. Kirby, who is connected with Messrs. Arnold and Company, Shanghai, and who has been on a business visit to the Colony since the beginning of the month, left for the North last Tuesday evening by the s.s. President Pierce. While here he made the Gloucester Hotel his headquarters.

Mrs. and Miss Archdeacon are two visitors from Yunnan who are reported to be having an immensely enjoyable holiday in Hong Kong at the moment. They are staying at the Gloucester Hotel and will be here for some time to come.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Ismail, who left early in the month for a holiday in Shanghai and Japan, have returned to the Colony, both looking very much better for the trip. While in Shanghai they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bertie Shirazee, both of whom are well-known to a large number of people in the Colony.

The many friends of Mrs. Grimes, wife of Mr. C. A. Grimes,

FLOWER STREET

Stall-Holders Feel
The Pinch

PETITION TO AUTHORITIES?

"Since we were moved up here about four years ago, business has not been quite so good and as a result three businesses have had to close down," said one of the stall-holders in Flower Street, which is now situated at the top end of D'Agulhar Street.

This particular florist told me that he had been in the business for the last 28 years and everything was so "rosy in the garden" till they were moved from their old home in Wyndham Street, which, incidentally, was more popularly known as Flower Street. "The old place was, of course, the ideal spot for our flower friends for it was so easily accessible; and the stalls with their multi-coloured flowers made it quite one of the sights in town," he continued.

It was explained that in the old place, there was sufficient room behind the stalls where wreaths could be made, but as it is now, the place is so congested that the wreaths or flower-baskets have to be made in the homes of the stall-holders, and it may well be imagined what the result is under the circumstances. Not being able to afford larger premises, these poor trademen are obliged to share a flat with three or four families and as a result there is little or no space in which to make the wreaths or baskets on the floor, while there is also the additional trouble of having to carry them down the very narrow staircases when completed.

Things have come to such a state now that the stall-holders are planning to approach the authorities again for permission to carry on their trade in the old place. My informant tells me that once before they applied for permission to do so but the request was turned down.

Others Sites Suggested

My informant suggested that if the authorities would not consider their application regarding the old site, perhaps permission may be granted for them to move to Battery Path or even Duddell Street. He was not concerned with the fact that the latter spot is now being used as a motor car park, but when it was explained that the Colony is already very short of car parks, he merely grunted and said, "Well, let us use the vacant spot opposite the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, on the Queen's Road side!"

There is no doubt about it that the flower sellers have been greatly affected by the change made four years ago and it would seem a great pity to force them out of business for want of a more convenient spot. Flowers, it is generally agreed, are very pleasant things, and it would not do the centre of the city any harm if we had a few stalls scattered about, provided, of course, these stalls are kept in a sanitary and tidy condition.

Scout Display On Nov. 7

Although the Boy Scout Movement in the past 25 years and more has grown into such an immense organisation covering almost every corner of the globe, it is quite possible that many people in Hong Kong may not realise what the Movement is doing in the Colony. Partly in order to show what Scouting is doing for young boys and men and partly to raise much needed funds, the Hong Kong Branch of the Boy Scout Association is organising a Grand Camp Fire Display.

The Display will be held on Saturday, November 7, on the Hong Kong Cricket ground by kind permission of the Committee, from 6.30 p.m. to 8.30 p.m. Tickets are being issued at $5, $2, $1 and 50 cents and can be had from any member of the Association or from Scout Headquarters, Lower Albert Road.

It is hoped that the public will support this effort, the first of its kind to be held in the Colony, and those who intend to come can be assured of witnessing a really good show.

FOOD "WASHED" WITH PURE AIR

Constantly Circulating

*in the Modern Air Conditioned
Refrigerator*

Certain stored foods pass off impurities, unpleasant in odor, which are quickly absorbed by other foods. Thus food, to remain impurity-free and to prevent decay, must be kept in air that is constantly purified as well as chilled. Cold alone is not enough!

The new OLYMPIC ICE Refrigerator, utilizing SIX-SIDED REFRIGERATION, keeps vitalized fresh air constantly circulating around your food. It "picks up" odors and impurities, carries them to the melting ice film, where they are absorbed and eliminated through the drain pipe. Food odors cannot interchange!

Too, the new OLYMPIC Air Conditioned Refrigerator maintains the correct balance of moisture in the air, preventing foods from drying out. Foods retain their natural flavors, juices and vitamins.

Our Ice Service Man will gladly demonstrate the new OLYMPIC Refrigerator.

PERSONALIA.

MR. T. S. Whyte-Smith, who went on leave following a bout of illness about six months ago, is now on his way back to the Colony from England. Mr. L. R. Andrews, another member of the Supreme Court staff, who is away on leave at the moment, is also due back shortly. It will be recalled that he, together with Mrs. Andrews, were passengers on the s.s. Tricolor which caught fire on the Atlantic, the passengers having to transfer to other vessels in the vicinity.

Mr. Justice J. J. Hayden, the acting Puisne Judge, accompanied by Mrs. Hayden, returned to the Colony by the s.s. Sarpedon last Wednesday, after having been away from the Colony for over a month. They are both looking very well after their holiday and Mr. Justice Hayden resumed duties on Thursday. During his absence Mr. J. A. Fraser occupied the Bench in the Summary Court.

Mr. and Mrs. "Tam" Pearce, who have been away from the Colony on Home leave, are due back here by the R.M.S. Empress of Canada.

Miss Marina Barretto, left, and Mr. Harry Ore, right, local pianists of high repute, have joined in a profound study of the special two-piano literature, and have scheduled their first recital for Tuesday, November 24, at the Helena May Institute.

Mrs. L. Charlton, manageress of Dina House, has returned to the Colony after a brief holiday in the North.

Mr. A. B. Lohorinho, the Consul-General for Portugal, has gone "out of town" for a few days and will not be in his office for the next two or three days.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. F. Bellamy, who have been on Home leave, are expected to return to the Colony about the middle of November. Mr. Bellamy is the general manager of Hong Kong Tramways, Ltd. We learn that the next member of the staff due for leave is the Secretary of the Company, Mr. W. F. Simmons.

Mr. E. P. H. Lang, the popular Registrar of the Supreme Court, is due to proceed on Home leave early in the New Year, and will be going away on the same day as Mr. W. J. Lockhart-Smith, the acting Land Officer.

Mr. E. L. Elias, a partner in the firm of Messrs. S. E. Levy and Company, who have their offices in Ice House Street, is now in Shanghai, having flown there last week from Canton. He will be returning to the Colony in about a fortnight's time and it is understood that he will also do the return trip by air.

(Left) A charming camera study of Miss M. Farrar (King's Studio). (Right) Miss Haeel Meridian, a clever pupil of Miss Violet Capell's as she will appear in the forthcoming dancing display at the King's Theatre on November 3 at 5 p.m.

There was a large crowd in the Naval Yard on Tuesday to bid farewell to the people who were travelling by the Lancashire for England. Lieut. J. P. (Bill) Williams, East Lancashire Regiment, who was a passenger on the ship, had a busy time attending to all his friends, amongst whom were Messrs. Bill Schabel, E. P. Humphreys and A. L. Sullivan.

Major and Mrs. W. E. B. Dowling were on the North Arm in the Naval Dockyard early last Tuesday morning, bidding goodbye and bon voyage to their friends who left by the troopship Lancashire. Prof. L. T. Ride, of The University, was also there.

MR. W. (Mac) Smith, the well-known local badminton player, is due to return from Home leave some time during the week. We learn that he will be accompanied by his bride, and that his many friends are planning to give the newly-wedded couple a right royal reception.

Miss Ramona Guevara, a prominent member of the Manila younger set, arrived in the Colony on Monday by the s.s. President Pierce. She will be spending a short holiday in the Colony, during which time she will reside at the Hong Kong Hotel.

The many friends of Mr. J. Pestonji, who was formerly in the local Civil Service but who has for many years been living in retirement here, will be glad to learn that he has recovered from his recent illness and is out and about again.

LITTLE NOTES of Great Importance

Just how appropriate the title of this column is, you'll see if you go into "our American shop," MAIZEE'S. Anything I might say about that shop is of great importance. And I say that now when you do your Autumn shopping you must visit MAIZEE'S; when you see their selection you'll agree with me. . . . New day frocks, evening gowns, coats, hats, handbags — all you need. But then fashionable frocks need fashionable faces — and fashionable faces are lovely faces. Try the Helen Rubinstein beauty preparations, they hold the secret of feminine loveliness.

Do you drive around town in a horse and buggy? Do you read by candle light and wear red flannel petticoats? No, you don't. . . . because you are an up-to-date, modern woman! And as a modern woman you want the best beauty preparations on the market. Well here's a suggestion: "BONCILLA," and you'll find them at the GRAND DISPENSARY, Cleansing Cream, Nourishing Cream and an All-Purpose Cream — all packed in attractive pots. And as a modern woman, or even if slightly old-fashioned, blonde or brunette, you have to give these preparations a trial. They'll suit you whatever your taste and personality.

Velvets rate high this season — and its time to see them at DOLLY VARDEN'S: long, circular-skirted dinner and dance gowns, fitted in princess streamline. Covered buttons streaking the front, or rows of glittering buttons ornamenting the belt, touches of brilliant colour, and over the top a long velvet evening coat. . . . Or gowns of gorgeous tulle or crepe, new tunic coats in all the latest shades. You'll love them all and have a hard time choosing — but whatever your choice believe me, you'll look well!

BREWERS BOOKSHOP has just received a new selection of gift stationery — and certainly its difficult to think of a gift that could be more welcome: lovely paper and a box either plain or ornate and of any colour you could wish for. Their books on sport are something to talk about too, "Perry on Tennis," Lowe's Lawn Tennis Annual 1936, "Lawn Tennis Courtcraft" by Norman H. Patterson, "Beyond the Game" by Helen Hall Jacobs — could a tennis player want more? "Badminton for All" by J. F. Devlin — and many others.

Spanking is no cure for an irritable child who cries for no apparent cause, has a very variable appetite, and is pale and listless. You may not have realised how easy it is for a child to get worms introduced into his body — just drinking unboiled water, perhaps, or eating something indigestible. And then the worms thrive, depositing poisonous matter which injuriously affects the whole system. WATSON'S WORM BONBONS, which are pleasant to take, are a sure cure, and may be used periodically as a preventive and a tonic. They'll keep your child healthy, happy, fat and strong. Only 8 cents each.

Delicious? Decidedly! — And of course we're talking about the EMA brand Fruit Butters, Marmalades, Jellies, Jams. They are just what we moderns demand — something new, something that is a real improvement. The EMA brand products are prepared under a special process that ensures the rich flavour of fresh fruits: flavours such as Pear, Apple, Lemon, Apricot, Crab Apple, Fig, Pine-apple, etc. They'll make you famous for your cakes, and tarts, and waffles. And what's more, there's a chance of winning a free prize — there's no saying you won't strike a jar with a lucky number!

AT THE BLUE ROOM

THE dinner dances at the Peninsula Hotel on Tuesdays and Fridays are very popular. Each week sees the Blue Room more crowded as the beginning of the winter season attracts more and more people for dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. Robertson of the East Lanes, gave a very large dinner party recently. Mrs. Robertson was wearing a pretty frock of voile in a pattern of flowers, and among her guests were Mrs. Richards and Mrs. White. Mrs. White's frock was particularly pretty; it was white embroidered at intervals with small interesting circles of silver beads stitched on to the material. Mrs. Richards was also in white, with a little red coatlet making a colour contrast, though indeed it was too warm for her to wear it a great deal.

Mrs. Eccles chose a blue and white spotted frock with attractive frilly shoulder line and it suited her very well. Mrs. Seth-Smith was wearing a black frock intriguingly decorated with white birds embroidered on one shoulder. Mrs. Kirkby, who was in the same party, was looking regal as ever in her wide skirted tulle frock of a mixed check with red revers and belt and a red band in her hair.

Mrs. Rybot was wearing a "picture" frock of turquoise blue stiff silk with a very full skirt and puff sleeves. She was sitting at the same table as Mrs.

Brigham, who was in a backless navy blue and white frock with a short white coat to match.

Mrs. "Chips" Davies was in sage blue satin, which appears to be her favourite colour. Mrs. Campbell was looking nice in the unusual shade of bottle green, made gay with a belt encrusted with "jewels" and shoulder straps to match.

Among the newcomers who arrived on the troopship Lancashire, we noticed Captain and Mrs. Godfrey and Captain and Mrs. Yates.

Mrs. Trillo and her pretty daughter, Miss Angelina Trillo, were also there.

Miss Jean Dobie, who visited the Colony earlier in the year, is back here again, on her way back to Panama after a visit to Bangkok, where she has some relatives and many friends. She is staying at the Hong Kong Hotel and is very enthusiastic about being in the Colony "now that the weather is on its best behaviour."

Mr. Ng Chak-wing, the senior Chinese interpreter in the Supreme Court, is now away on holiday, and it is understood that he is spending his leave in Canton and up-country. A very keen amateur photographer, Mr. Ng is doing a lot of outdoor photography at the moment and he stated recently that when the weather gets a little cooler, he will again do his own developing.

A recent snap of Miss M. Smalley, one of the most active members of the Hong Kong Ladies' Hockey Club.

Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Bradbury, who have been away on Home leave, together with their family, are due to return to the Colony on the 3rd ult. It is understood, however, that their eldest daughter, Violet, will not be coming back yet as she is staying in England to further her studies.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Phelps, who have been in the Colony for four years without a leave, have gone away to Japan, where they will spend a short holiday. Mr. Phelps is connected with the Chief Constructor's Office in the Royal Naval Dockyard.

At The Gloucester Last Saturday

QUEENIE and her three "hours," to say nothing of the other performers and the Band at the Gloucester, attracted an immense crowd there again on Saturday of last week. The autumn styles are beginning to show in frocks now, fuller skirts and wide shoulder effects; and darker colours are very noticeable and pleasant to see after so long a summer with everyone wearing light or washable evening frocks. Even among the men there were quite a lot of black dinner jackets to be seen!

An unusual shade of a sort of plum purple was being worn by Mrs. Barham. This had the fashionable shoulder width with "wing" sleeves. Mrs. Harriman was there in black tulle, her frock being cut with a little short flared tunic effect and relieved with a neat white collar. Another black dress was the one worn by Mrs. Weymouth, strikingly trimmed with a belt of white gardenias and a half ruff of them circling the high neck line.

Mrs. Cavenagh Mainwaring, who has not long been back from Wei Hai Wei, was wearing a pretty blue frock trimmed with large silver sequins that tinkled as she moved. Mrs. Grey was in black velvet with black tulle brocade shoulder straps and neckline, an original combination of material that was very effective.

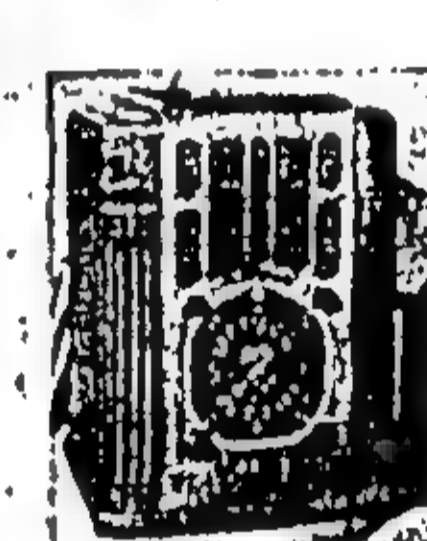

Mrs. Walker was wearing an unusual shade of blue, it was something between a blue and green and, as best be described as "sea-coloured." Another pretty blue frock, but of quite a different shade, was that worn by Miss Sheila Jeffreys, who was with her fiancé, Mr. W. A. Mackinlay.

Miss Rosalie Alabaster arrived late after her part in "King Olaf." She was in a dainty pin spot muslin, whose crisp lines were very becoming. Miss Heather Gerrard was wearing a lovely shade of pink — and there the pinks and pinkies! — It was a backless frock of lace over satin with a long skirt which she held up when dancing. The shell-like colour suited her petite and fragile appearance to perfection. Among other were Captain and Mrs. Scott, Miss Kelly, Mr. Withers, Mr. Garthwaite, Mr. and Mrs. Clough Taylor, Major Whelby, Mr. and Mrs. Potts, and Captain Mitchell.

LITTLE NOTES of Great Importance

When sophisticated ladies mob a place, you know it must be good. That's why hats at PAUL RENNET'S go like hot cakes. No one is more fussy about selecting their stock than PAUL RENNETS — and so you're sure of finding something really good. I saw a bewitching black cornucopia this week topped with a great rose, and a daring version of "feathers in your hat" — blue velvet with shining feathers swooping down in front. And many others as captivating as all spelling PAUL RENNET'S flair for fashion. All I say is — join the sophisticated ladies!

Do you want in your radio new beauty, new performance, new features never before built into any radio? If so, you have only to visit the INTERNATIONAL RADIO SALES AND SERVICE, 27, Hankow Road, Kowloon, and make enquiries about their new 1937 Zeniths. Perhaps you'll start with a small 1937 Zenith and pave the way for an All Wave World Wide Automatic Radio-Gram. — But whatever it is, it'll be an added attraction to your home, giving you the maximum reception with the minimum amount of trouble. And then you know that all your radio repair work will be done by qualified British technicians.

Don't you worry about choosing your Christmas gifts for those at home. . . . Mrs. Woods of THE JADE TREE has already chosen them for you. She is known throughout the Far East for her remarkable ability in selecting the unusual, the different, and all the attractive Christmas stock now being displayed in THE JADE TREE Stores at surprisingly low prices. There have been personally selected by her. There are lovely jewelled trees for table decoration, kimono, Mandarin coats, Chinese rugs, vanity boxes, hand carved jewellery and embroidered jewellery boxes, evening bags to match any dress. I'm out of breath and still that's far from all. Go early!

Come let us go to the ball . . . music and dancing and all . . . but it'll be difficult to choose the queen of the ball because almost everybody is wearing a LANE, CRAWFORD evening gown. And no wonder! If you take a peep into LANE, CRAWFORD'S you'll see what I mean. And what a selection they have! There was a plaid taffeta that caught my eye this week with ruffs and frills in old-time manner, a sleek and lovely gown in silver and blue metal cloth, one of tinsel and crepe, and one of crepe dotted with the gorgeous new coloured rhinestones. Creations one joy to look at! Just imagine wearing them!

There are old friends of the family you simply can't imagine life without. . . . have you learned to include NOXZEMA among them? For many are the times NOXZEMA will stand by you. Not only will it ease your tired feet after a long day of Autumn shopping, but if you're thoughtful enough to rub it on before you set out it will prevent tiredness; it will soothe baby's rash or any skin troubles; and if you're being wise enough to be taking sunbaths at this most perfect time of the year, just rub on NOXZEMA and prevent any irritation of sunburn.

BLIND GIRLS VISIT SHEK-O Enjoyable Picnic On Sands

A most enjoyable afternoon was spent at Shek-O yesterday by 54 blind girls, who were conveyed there in 20 private cars for their annual picnic.

The children took part in a concert held on the beach and rendered a number of popular songs, after which tea and refreshments were served.

According to Mr. A. Urquhart, the Honorary Secretary of the Home, the number of presents and other gifts received this year constitutes a record in the history of the Home. What remains of the money collected for this event will be utilised at Christmas for the purchase of useful gifts for the girls.

FAIRLEA GIRLS' SCHOOL

Jubilee Celebrations Completed

"OLD GIRLS" ATTEND DINNER

The Golden Jubilee celebrations of the Fairlea Girls' School, which commenced last Thursday, were concluded last evening when over 40 "Old Girls" assembled at dinner in the main hall of St. Stephen's Girls' College.

Prior to the dinner the "Old Girls" were entertained to a tea party at 3.30 p.m. following which a Thanksgiving Service was taken by Bishop Mok, who has been connected with the history of "Fairlea" for over 48 years. Mrs. Mok, his wife, who was also present, was one of the "Old Girls."

In an inspiring address Bishop Mok referred to "Fairlea's" first principal, Miss Margaret Johnstone, and to some of the earliest students, Mrs. Woo, Mrs. Loi and Mrs. Mok, and of the useful work which many of the "Old Girls" have done and are doing at present for the Church. He concluded his remarks with a reference to the present principal, Mrs. Cheung, and reminded the students that they were very fortunate in having such a clever woman as their head. A blessing upon the new school was then pronounced by the Bishop. A collection was then taken up by four "Old Girls."

The following "Old Girls" were among those who attended the dinner:—Dr. Pui-chung, Mrs. Ng Tin-po, Lee Kwok So, Mei, Mak Hing-yuen, Ng Chui-shoung, Kwok Man-chun, Ip Lee Kwai Hing, Yuen Fok Sai Woon, Yuen Chai-shoung, Kwok Wai-chun, Yung Dip-sau, Lau Chung-sang, Chan Lai-fong, Lo Suk-ying, Mung Yau-choo, Li Chee-lin, Ma Ching-lin, Tsang Man-chung, Woo See-tai, Tsang Sau-king, Tsang Chap-yee, Wan Wai-hing, Wan Yiu-ling, Mrs. Chui Chee-bun, Tsang Lai-yung, Tsang Yin-yung, Lee Tan-kwai, Chan Siu-ching, Miss Goodridge, Chan Ching, Fung Kwai-yee, Ho Oi-oh, Lo Yuk-king, Chouk Yin-ching, Mrs. Fok Ching-shan, Mrs. Tam Man-sam, Mrs. Leo Hon-ching, Mrs. Mok and Ma Yuk-ching.

HOTEL CECIL DANCE

The fortnightly dance of the Health and Strength League was held at the Hotel Cecil last night and was well attended. Mrs. Johnston and Mrs. Adams won the spot dance competition. Mrs. McGuinness and Mr. Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. Ball, and Mrs. Ferguson and Mr. Lilly qualified for the final of the Ball Room Dancing Competition held under the auspices of the League.

Army Rugby Fifteen Win Over Club Fine Backing Up By Forwards

Brilliant backing up by their forwards and a splendid defence gave the Army first fifteen a splendid victory over the Club in their friendly Rugby game on the Sookunpoo ground yesterday afternoon, the Army winning by a goal and four tries (17 points) to a penalty goal (3 points) after the scores had been level at the interval.

The Club started off in an impressive manner and held the Army up to the interval, but the second half saw an almost fresh Army pack run the Club forwards off their feet, Lt. Lincoln being the outstanding player on view—he scored two very good tries through following up.

The Club were very unlucky not to have scored on two occasions when both Butcher and Grievie crossed the Army line and dropped the ball when tackled.

Grievie Disappoints
Frost was the more confident of the two full-backs, although Barry made up for his earlier mistakes in the latter stages with some splendid tackling. Van Leeuwen and Boyling were evenly matched, although the latter's handling was far better than that of the Club player. Boyling started off badly, but midway through he improved tremendously, especially in opening up the game for the Army backs. Bidwell was an absentee and Butcher, playing in his stead, gave a sound performance, but Grievie was the most disappointing man in the Club line, being repeatedly tackled in possession. Chadwick had one long run, but was successfully grasped by Barry a few yards from the Army line.

Floyd missed Davies, but played an inspired game in the second half, scoring the best try of the day and paving the way for another. His splendid defence repeatedly saved the Army line from being crossed. Kelshaw and Jones gave him sound support while Lewis, at stand-off-half, was sound, and Precco was the equal of Bonnar.

The entire Army pack played up to scratch, Lincoln, Gillespie and Morgan being outstanding, while Wulken, Watson and Munro were the pick of the Club forwards. The Club scored their points through a penalty goal by Watson, and the Army scored tries through Lincoln (2), Boyling, Floyd and Kelshaw, the latter converting Lincoln's last effort.

Club Juniors Routed
The second fifteen game which preceded the major match of the afternoon saw H.M.S. Medway trounce the Club, who played with 14 men throughout (G. S. Wilson leaving after a few minutes' play with a twisted ankle) by three goals and four tries (27 points) to a try (3 points).

The Club were no match for the sailors, D. Hynds being the only Club back to penetrate their defence for an unconverted try.

Lt. Davies, the scrum-half, Lt. Harvey, the right centre-three-quarters, and St. Warren right-wing-three-quarters, were the pick of the Navy backs, the first named playing a particularly fine game to score three tries, one of which was converted by St. Warren, while the other points came from converted tries by Warren and Harvey, and unconverted efforts by Lt. Colman and Lt. Harvey. The score at the interval was 10 points to 3 in their favour.

MR. BELL'S FAREWELL TO ROTARY CLUB
At the meeting of the Rotary Club on Tuesday next Mr. W. H. Bell, who sails for home on retirement shortly, will give "Some Impressions"—based on 40 years' life in the Far East. At the same meeting Mr. S. Yamanaka will bid the Club farewell, on transfer from Hong Kong.

H. K. AMUSEMENT PARK
The Hong Kong Amusement Park at Hennessy Road is increasing in popularity and last night it was well attended. There were quite a number of additional side-shows erected. The skating rink was well patronised, but owing to lack of entries the fancy dress skating competition was not held.

C.B.S. SURPRISE
The Central British Schoolgirls, playing at home, caused a sensation yesterday when they beat the Central British Association Ladies by 5 goals to 1, after leading at the interval by the odd goal in three.

Miss A. Martin (8) and Miss D. McCaw (2) scored the winners' goals, while Miss S. Best netted for the losers.

C.B.S. Ladies: Miss C. Mint; Miss H. Martin and Miss N. Frazer; Miss C. Bone, Miss N. McCaw and Miss J. Booker; Miss P. Baxter, Miss D. McCaw, Miss A. Martin, Miss W. Booker and Miss J. Parkinson.

C.B.A. Ladies: Miss N. Adams; Miss P. Woolley and Miss D. Witherell; Miss S. Best, Miss O. Peters and Miss I. Woolley; Miss D. Hunt, Miss J. Loppard, Mrs. Burton, Miss R. Blackmore and Miss I. Buchanan.

OLD COMRADES MEET AGAIN

Annual Dinner At The Peninsula R.E.'S HOLD ANNUAL FUNCTION

The second annual reunion dinner of the Hong Kong Branch of the Royal Engineers' Old Comrades' Association was held in the Roof Garden of the Peninsula Hotel last night and was attended by some 265 members and friends. Owing to the absence of the president, Colonel E. St. G. Kirke, D.S.O., Chief Engineer, China Command, through illness, the function was presided over by Lieut-Colonel H. M. Fordham, M.C., R.E., the vice-president.

Amongst the serving and retired members and friends present were Lieut-Colonel L. C. Reid, M.C., R.E. (Chairman of the Branch), Lieut-Colonel H. B. L. Dowbiggin, O.B.E., Majors Steers, Dixon, Edwards, Smyth, Manners, Johnson, Walker, Gifford-Hull, Captains Eley, Bader, Knapton, Singer, Thomas, Gillespie, Lieuts. Higge, Pattullo, Shearer, Smart, Winkfield, Barron, Mason, Amps, Luckin, Houghton, and Douglas.

This was followed by the speech of the Chairman, who said in part:—

"Gentlemen, you will have noticed the absence of our President, the Chief Engineer (Colonel Kirke), and it is with great regret that I have to inform you that he has been forced by the doctor's order to stay away to-night. He has asked me to say that he is very sorry to have missed this dinner, but hopes to see you all on Sunday, November 1."

"This Branch of the R.E. Old Comrades re-opened on May 30, 1935, with a membership of approximately 80; by October 1935, the time of our first reunion dinner the membership had risen to 200 including 20 retired members. The strength of the Branch is still on the up grade and we now total 245 members including 40 retired. This increase in number of the retired members is particularly pleasing and I would like to take this opportunity to accord them a hearty welcome."

"During the year we have lost 12 members by transfer from the station, and also deeply regret the passing of Mr. F. C. Southam, Chief Engineer, s.s. Paraga, when the ship was lost with all hands in December 1935, and also Mr. L. E. Longbottom, retired Q.M.S. draughtsman, R.E., who was employed by the P.W.D. up to the time of his death in July this year.

"You will be glad to hear that not a single case of distress amongst ex-members of the Corps has been brought to our notice during the year, and, during the same period three members have been found employment locally, and four members have been entered on the Headquarters Roll in London for employment on leaving the service."

Appeal For Support
"We need a greater measure of assistance from our retired members in running the Branch. At present it is almost entirely run by enthusiastic service personnel, many of whom will be leaving the station next year, and, although we hope to replace them by others no less able and enthusiastic, this is not an ideal state of affairs. A strong representation of our retired members on the executive and committees would provide continuity always."

"You will, I know, join with me in extending a hearty welcome to our new Chairman, Colonel Reid, a distinguished old comrade."

Real Corps Reunion
The toast of the Branch President was given by Col. W. G. Henry, Survey Section, R.E., who, in the course of his remarks, emphasised the great services rendered to the Association by the Officers of the Corps, serving and retired, as well as those of the Branch President, Colonel H. St. G. Kirke.

Following the addresses and the usual loyal toasts a very enjoyable concert was held, by the following artists:—Sgt. L. A. Jordan, a.m., Sgt. Inst. L. W. Russell, A. E. C. Sappers, V. J. Labrum and A. Spary, H.K.V.D.C., Sgt. Choley, x.f.f., and L/Opl. L. A. Cox, a.m.

"K.I.T.C. AT HOME"

Prizes Presented To Winners

WELL-ATTENDED GATHERING

The Kowloon Indians' Tennis Club held their first annual "At Home" at King's Park yesterday afternoon, when, in the presence of a large and distinguished gathering, Mrs. Pretam Vaswani distributed the prizes to the winners of the Club's Tennis Tournaments, and medals to the members of the tennis team who won the Hong Kong Men's Doubles Lawn Tennis "C" Division League Shield for the first time.

The clubhouse was gaily decorated and music was supplied by the Band of the 8th Punjab Regiment, by kind permission of Lt. Colonel J. C. Brewer and Officers.

During the afternoon the guests were entertained with several exhibition tennis games, in which S. A. Rumjahn, former holder of the Colony Open Singles Tennis Championship, and his cousin, "H. D." took part. The Final of the Singles Championship was also played and was won by Firdos Khan, who beat S. A. Hussain 4-6, 6-4, 6-3, 8-6.

Prize-Winners

The following received prizes: Doubles Championship: S. A. Hussain and S. S. Hussain.

Singles, Championship: G. M. Khan, runner-up S. A. Hussain.

The others were Ahmed Khan, I. M. Singh, T. M. V. Devan, Firdos Khan, M. A. Khan, Dr. H. M. Singh and G. A. Wabab.

Among those who were present at the function were:—Major and Mrs. E. C. S. Bates, Major M. A. E. Campbell, Major Whetton, Capt. and Mrs. C. M. B. Kimm, Capt. D. C. Chopra, Capt. K. Jallani, the Messrs. S. S. Mamak, S. M. Shroff, A. S. Mamak, Lt. Genders, Mr. and

Communist Of Ancient China

Social Teachings Of Moh Tze Preached A Religion Of Frugality

(By PHYLIS JUBY)

Dr. Hu Shih has spoken of Moh Tze as "perhaps the greatest mind China has produced." Certainly his teaching was unusual, often original, and Liang Chi-chao, one of the greatest modern authorities on the Mohist writings, noticed the likeness between the teaching of this philosopher of the fourth century B.C. and the Communist experiment. And the sage, formerly denounced by many as a heretic, is now regarded as a fascinating reformer whose challenging doctrines must be given a fair evaluation. While Confucius was the champion of the Middle Way, Moh Tze would brook no compromise, not content unless the very foundation of society were reconstructed.

Even his most severe critics paid Moh Tze tribute. Mencius, who condemned his teaching as leading men in the way of birds and beasts, said: "Moh Tze loved all men, and would gladly wear out his whole being from head to heel for the benefit of mankind." Chuang Tze, the Taoist philosopher, said: "The life of the Mohists is toilsome and their death ritual is too simple. Their way is too primitive. It makes men sad and sorrowful. It is difficult to practise. It is against human nature and man cannot stand it. Though Moh Tze himself could bear it, how about the world? But Moh Tze was certainly a glory to the world! What he could not attain he would never cease to seek, even though he be in privation and destitution. Ah, what a genius he was!"

Religion Of Frugality

Moh Tze lived just after Confucius, approximately from 283 to 382 B.C., a time of war and corruption, when neither right nor justice existed except by the whim of the nobles. He was born in the State of Lu, the same State in which both Confucius and Mencius were born. Very little is known of his life except that he and his followers made a religion of frugality. The hero who inspired them was Yu the Great, who devoted himself to the people, carrying loads, tilling the soil himself, wearing himself out for the common good. "He bathed in the rain, combed his hair with the wind and rubbed his body smooth in the toil and privations of his travelling." He who did not live in the manner of Yu was not admitted into the sect. "Moh Tze lived in a very small thatched hut built of rough, unworked timber. His utensils were of earthenware, his food of the coarsest kind. In summer he wore garments of coarse, yellow cloth, and in the winter he wore a coat of deer skin. When he was buried, he was laid in a coffin of thin boards."

He founded a school which for two centuries were a serious rival to Confucianism. A work of about 230 B. C. states: "Confucianism and Mohism are the outstanding schools of philosophy in the country." And again: "The followers of Confucius and Moh Tze are very many, their disciples exceedingly numerous: they fill the Empire."

Sect Splits

After his death the sect split into three distinct schools, one a school of scientific and logical

Mohism which came to be known as Neo-Mohism—the only school of Chinese thought which developed a scientific logic; and Dr. Hu Shih claims that it also advanced a theory of knowledge based on psychological analysis, continuing the pragmatic tradition of Moh Tze and developing an experimental method.

These Mohist schools gradually lost their influence in the time of Shih Huang-ti when the Empire was founded, and did not flower again under the Han. The failure and disappearance of Mohism was probably due to the doctrines of impartial love and pacifism being incompatible with the needs of the age. It was a time of gigantic wars, and Moh Tze was trying to show the utter futility of war, pointing out how both victor and vanquished lose in the end. He said: "Here is a world which condemns a petty wrong and praises the greatest of all wrongs—the attack of one nation upon another—and calls it right. Can we say that the world knows the distinction between right and wrong?" But the people of the time answered: "If the principle of disarmament triumphs, then our strategic passes will be defenceless. And if the doctrine of universal love triumphs, then none of our soldiers will be willing to fight." But while Moh Tze vigorously opposed all kinds of aggressive warfare, he engaged actively in defensive preparations: he demanded of his followers that they should be willing, if necessary, to lay down their life in order to secure justice for the weak and oppressed.

Principle Of Authority

While Confucius and his disciples conceived life as a perpetual effort of culture rendered possible by friendship and a frank politeness, Moh Tze seems to admit private affections, impartiality in affection will add a sort of security: "If a prince cherishes only his own domain, a father only his own family, why would they not love only themselves? But if a son loves his father does he not wish to assure him the benefit of the affection and impartiality he gives to others?"

"Mine" And Thine
When there is any difference between "mine" and "thine" there might easily be a collision of interests, therefore, Moh Tze argues, the concept of basic equality must be the foundation of all social life. He says: "To say that one loves one, must wait until one loves has been extended to all. To say that one does not love, one has not to wait until one loves nobody at all." And Moh Tze believed his ideas to be practicable: "If they are good, they must also be practicable." He did not conceive love as a mere sentiment detached from practical life, but a force to be applied in every human relationship. "The man who possesses love will lend assistance to all that benefits the world and remove all that is harmful to it."

Conduct

He believed in the utility of institutions: there was no meaning in anything save what it was good for. "Any principle which can elevate conduct should be perpetuated. That which cannot elevate conduct should not be the wisest chosen as chiefs... (and so on down to the village elders). But even the Son of Heaven was not a law unto himself, he was subject to the Will of Heaven: the most universal standard of right and wrong. Moh Tze's method of unification is expressed in one short sentence: "Conform to your immediate superior, and not to those below you."

Ideal State

In his ideal State hard work and strict economy were the rule, each man doing the particular work for which he was best fitted, so long as it was of a productive character. There must be neither extreme wealth nor extreme poverty. "Those who have surplus strength should share that in the work of others; those who have surplus wealth should divide between others."

Perhaps the basic tenet of Mohism is the doctrine of impartial love: a repudiation of the Confucian principle of a gradation of love decreasing with the remoteness of relationship. The philosopher coined a phrase to express his main idea which has become familiar to every student of ancient Chinese writings: "Impartial love and mutual benefit." All suffer, said Moh Tze, as soon as there is a spirit of self-interest and a spirit of clan. An intelligent self-interest must blend with the public interest, must mean a distribution of benefits and affections but by a sense of impartiality. "He who loves another will be loved in his turn, who enriches others will in his turn be enriched." He was criticised by a famous poet and thinker for advocating the elimination of all discrimination in human love: "Moh Tze's principle of indiscriminating love without recognising any difference or class, makes one look upon one's own home, father, and brothers as one looks upon a stranger. Thus one is left without a proper starting point." This question sorely troubled Mencius too.

But Moh Tze does not demand the cessation of filial feelings; rather he sets them forth as an obligation. Instead of damaging private affections, impartiality in affection will add a sort of security: "If a prince cherishes only his own domain, a father only his own family, why would they not love only themselves? But if a son loves his father does he not wish to assure him the benefit of the affection and impartiality he gives to others?"

When there is any difference between "mine" and "thine" there might easily be a collision of interests, therefore, Moh Tze argues, the concept of basic equality must be the foundation of all social life. He says: "To say that one loves one, must wait until one loves has been extended to all. To say that one does not love, one has not to wait until one loves nobody at all." And Moh Tze believed his ideas to be practicable: "If they are good, they must also be practicable." He did not conceive love as a mere sentiment detached from practical life, but a force to be applied in every human relationship. "The man who possesses love will lend assistance to all that benefits the world and remove all that is harmful to it."

He believed in the utility of institutions: there was no meaning in anything save what it was good for. "Any principle which can elevate conduct should be perpetuated. That which cannot elevate conduct should not be

MOTORING NOTES

WORLD'S FIRST MOTOR-CAR Mentioned As Coming From China

STEAM CAR BUILT FOR EMPEROR IN 1675

A story which purports to answer the perennial question of who invented the motor-car and incidentally reveals that the first published record of a motor-car mentions the Emperor of China as the owner, has reached these columns through the courtesy of Mr. C. E. White, Manager of Far East Motors, local Chevrolet distributors, who gleaned his information from a recent issue of The Automotive Daily News. The story states that the first automobile ever made was a small steam car built for the Emperor of China in approximately the year 1675 by Ferdinand Verbiest, a Belgian missionary. The car is described in Astronomia Europea published in 1680. It was said to be driven by a Branca turbine. Thus it appears that China can claim credit for having the first motor-car in the world.

MASKED BALL AT THE GLOUCESTER

To Help Charitable Institution

A Fancy Dress "Bal Masque" is being held at the Gloucester Hotel on Friday, November 6, the primary purpose being to raise funds for the Society of St. Vincent de Paul. Will some of the Hong Kong society ladies volunteer to act as partners at this "Bal Masque" for those not fortunate enough to have their own and who present a dance ticket? Volunteer partners are invited to send their names to the Organising Social Secretary, Masked Ball, c/o Gloucester Hotel. Distinctive rosettes will then be issued to them.

perpetuated. To perpetuate anything that cannot elevate conduct is nothing but waste of speech." And how does he conceive conduct? He declares knowledge to be of three kinds: learning, inference and experience, and says that each is to be tested by the practical consequences it tends to produce. Conduct, therefore, is the "completion of knowledge."

All his teaching evinces a strong faith in human reason. Through logical reasoning, he meant to destroy fatalism and succeed in having all men adopt his principle of mutual love and benefit. He held that in reasoning there must be a foundation, to be found in the experiences of the wisest men in the past; a general survey, by comparing it with the facts of actual experience; a practical application, by putting it into the laws and governmental policy and seeing whether or not it is furthering the welfare of the State and the people.

To call Moh Tze a Communist would perhaps be an exaggeration; but his system was certainly Communist in aim. If his teachings were applied, thoroughly it would certainly mean a limitation of personal wealth and the elimination of poverty. Class privileges would not be tolerated. He interests us to-day because our time is in many ways so very like his own and our problems not very different: a time of conflicting doctrines, of shocking contrasts, of war, betrayals, assassinations, and yet, within, a time of taste and refinement, of aesthetic achievements in the realm of arts.

TERRAZZO WORK IN HONG KONG

MR. A. VANNINI'S
BUSINESS

CHINESE CRAFTSMEN AS COMPETITORS?

Among the prominent Italian business men in the Colony is one who fought on the Austrian front during the Great War and who was held prisoner in the hands of the Germans for over 12 months. He is Mr. A. Vannini, the principal of Messrs. A. Vannini and Company, a firm which specialises in terrazzo and marble work.

Born on August 17, 1892, in the town of Florence, Mr. Vannini first came out to the East in 1923 to join the firm of Messrs. Garibaldi and Company in Tientsin, an Italian firm which was established there doing marble and terrazzo work. On signing a contract with the Reilly and Trust Company, Limited, the company sent Mr. Vannini down to Hong Kong to supervise the terrazzo work which was executed in Exchange Building, now occupied by Messrs. Lane, Crawford and Company, Limited.

While Mr. Vannini was engaged on this commission Garibaldi and Company went into bankruptcy. So in January, 1927, Mr. Vannini started his own business in the Colony in Loong Fat Street under the present name of A. Vannini and Company. At that time he had no machinery and the polishing of the terrazzo tiles and cutting of the marble had to be done by hand. In 1932 Mr. Vannini moved into his present premises at North Point and imported the necessary machinery. He now employs over 100 Chinese men and women.

Origin Of Terrazzo Work
According to Mr. Vannini, the origin of terrazzo work was the general demand for a less expensive mosaic work, which is inlaid work formed by little pieces of enamel, glass, marble and precious stones of various colours and cut, disposed on a ground of cement in such a manner as to form designs and to imitate the colours and gradations of painting. The Chinese people are learning the art of executing this kind of work and will in the future be serious competitors in this trade.

Mr. Vannini can also claim to be the first to buy and read the Sunday Herald every Sunday morning, that is of course if it does not rain. On every first day of the week he comes to town very early to cross the harbour and go hunting. Finding no paper on sale in the streets he goes direct to the Sunday Herald printing press to buy a copy. Besides hunting he regularly listens-in to the radio News Broadcast from Italy every morning at 5.30 o'clock.

He was married in 1928 and intends to visit his native country within the next 18 months. Recently he admitted into partnership in the firm a young Italian sculptor, Mr. O. Aconali.

Some Of His Work
Among the prominent buildings on which Mr. Vannini has worked are: Peninsula Hotel, War Memorial Hospital, Yokohama Specie Bank (Shameen), Gloucester Building, Marina House, St. Paul's Church, La Salle College, Italian Convent, Central British School, Haw Boon-par mansion, Aberdeen Industrial School, Rosary Church, St. Teresa's Church and Ricci Hall (H.K. University).

The annual At Home and distribution of prizes will be held at the Craigengower Cricket Club to-day, when a tea dance will take place from 6 to 8 p.m. Members and their friends are cordially invited to attend the function.

The prizes will be distributed by Mrs. D. K. Kharas, at the conclusion of which a presentation will be made to Mr. and Mrs. D. K. Kharas to mark their retirement from the Colony and as a token of appreciation of their long association with the club, extending over a period of 28 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Kharas will be leaving for India by the a.s. Corfu on Saturday, October 31.

BRIDGE NOTES

TAKING THE DANGER OUT OF THE "DANGER HAND"

BY ELY CULBERTSON

ONE of the first things the Declarer should try to decide is which adversary holds the "danger hand" and how this adversary may be prevented from gaining the lead after establishing the setting tricks. One of the methods commonly used is to hold up a controlling card in this adversary's long suit until his partner has no card of that suit with which to put him in the lead. Another is to put the danger hand in the lead, and thus deprive him of an entry card, at a time when the lead can do him no good. Both methods are illustrated in the following hand:

South, dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

NORTH		WEST		EAST		SOUTH
S-8 3	H-6 2	D-A K J 6 2	C-Q J 6 3	S-A Q 5	H-A J 9 4	D-10 8 3	C-A 9 4
S-K 10 7 6 2	H-K 10 5	D-7 4	C-K 8 5	S-10 7 6 2	H-8 7 3	D-Q 9 5	C-10 7 2

South West North East
1 H Pass 2 D Pass
2 NT Pass 3 NT Pass
Pass Pass

West opened the spade suit and South won the Jack with the Queen.

South could see that the bulk of his winners must come from setting up the diamond suit, but as this might require losing the lead in diamonds, he had to prepare to shut out the adverse spade suit. He could of course withhold the spade Ace until the third round of the suit, but this course would be futile if West had a side re-entry. If the diamond suit would produce five tricks, no clubs would be necessary except the Ace. But if the diamond suit would produce only four tricks, an additional club trick would be necessary.

South did not fear a heart trump.

The Appeal Of Perfume

There is surely nobody among us humans who never experienced the delicious thrills of a fragrant flower garden in early June; there is nobody whose heart did not beat faster below the velvet sky of a scented summer night.

Is it any wonder then that wily Eve took quick advantage of our little weakness from time immemorial and that she enhanced her womanly charms by the additional allure of sweet-scented oils or essences.

Indeed, the manufacture of perfumery and cosmetics has to-day become an important branch of industry, which it would be quite impossible to eliminate from the intricate structure of modern life.

AMUSEMENT PARK AT WANCHAI

Kiddies Enjoy Visit
To Zoo

INNOVATION BY MANAGEMENT

The latest effort to entertain Colony residents, namely the Hong Kong Amusement Park, situated in Wanchai, just a stone's throw from the Lee Theatre, is meeting with overwhelming success and the Park is fast becoming a popular rendezvous for people who like variety entertainment. The skating rink is fast gaining in popularity every night, while yesterday the management opened the Park from 12 noon till 6 p.m., an admission charge of 10 cents only being made. The ticket also enables the visitor to see the Zoo free of charge.

There are ponies for those who care for that diversion and the Chinese Theatre is an added attraction. The Cantonese cast is composed of 20 actors and 12 actresses, and they expect to give all the popular plays, both the comedies and dramas that have become famous on the Chinese stage.

Children seem to be having a good time, and the little ones take great pleasure in feeding the monkeys at the Zoo with peanuts. The Chinese Theatre is of course open in the evening and early comers are assured of good seats. For a pleasant and amusing afternoon or evening the Hong Kong Amusement Park will provide a welcome change.

entry in West's hand, since he himself had command of the suit, but the possible club entry was to be feared because it stood in the way of a second club trick.

His course was thus indicated. He led a diamond to the Ace in Dummy and then led the Queen of clubs for a finesse. If the finesse won, he was sure of his two club tricks without loss of the lead, and he could then turn his attention to the establishment of the diamond suit. If the finesse lost, then at least the dangerous club King had been knocked out of the West hand before South's spade Ace could be forced out. After winning the club King, West continued spades; but South held up his Ace, and when later the diamond finesse lost to East, and East returned a heart (having no spade left), South put up the Ace of hearts and ran his tricks. The clubs breaking, South made four no-trumps.

DRASTIC STEP BY PORTUGAL RELATIONS WITH SPAIN SEVERED COMMUNIQUE ISSUED BY LISBON GOVERNMENT

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Lisbon, Yesterday.
The Portuguese Government has announced that it has severed diplomatic relations with the Spanish Government, to which it has sent a Note giving its reasons, which it reserves the right to publish at the opportune moment. It has recalled its Charge d'Affaires, who is at Alicante. — Reuter.

Lisbon: Portugal has broken off diplomatic relations with the Madrid Government, according to an official communique issued here, which states that the Portuguese Foreign Minister addressed to-day a Note to the Spanish Ambassador in Lisbon, informing him that for reasons set forth in the Note the Portuguese Government is compelled to cease entertaining diplomatic relations with Madrid.

The communique goes on to say that the Portuguese Charge d'Affaires in Alicante has been telegraphically instructed to withdraw from Lisbon and to go immediately on board a Portuguese warship anchored in that port and return home.

M.C.C. HELD TO DRAW

Hardstaff Injured
Attempting Big-Hit

Perth, Yesterday.
The match between the M.C.C. touring team and the Combined Western Australia eleven ended here to-day in a draw.

The Western Australia team were all out for 438 after having taken their overnight total of 293 for 1 to 361 for 5 at lunch. The M.C.C. scored 120 for 4 in their second innings before stumps were drawn.

Hardstaff, who made 30 not out in the second innings, fell flat on his back when jumping out to drive and injured his right ankle, but he resumed his innings.

Leslie Ames, whose back is worse, is staying in bed and will be travelling to Melbourne by boat on Tuesday, thus avoiding the long train journey. Wade, the Essex wicket keeper, who is holidaying in Australia, may be brought into the team.

M.C.C.: 497 (R. E. S. Wyatt 27, Hammond 107, Worthington 89, Fishlock 81, G. O. Allen 65, Copson 10 not out; R. A. Halcorn 4 for 124) and 120 for 4 (Barnett 37, Worthington 25, Hardstaff 30 not out).
Combined Western Australia: 438 (Baddock 149, Horrocks 123, Copson 4 for 82). — Reuter.

HU HAN-MIN'S FUNERAL

DR. KOTOWALL'S RECEPTION
The Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotowall left for Canton by the "Talsihan" on Friday evening to attend the funeral of the late Mr. Hu Han-min. Upon arrival in Canton on Saturday morning he was welcomed by representatives of Chairman Huang Mo-sung, Mayor Tsang Yang-fu and Miss Hu Muk-lan, as well as by a host of personal friends. A special car was placed at his disposal by the Mayor.

In the morning Dr. Kotowall called on General Yu Hon-mow, General Huang Mo-sung and Mayor Tsang Yang-fu; and in the evening he attended a private dinner at the Nam Yuen Restaurant, given in his honour by the Mayor, at which many of the higher officials were present. Dr. Kotowall is also attending a reception given by the principal officials of the Canton Government to the distinguished party from the North attending the funeral of the late Mr. Hu Han-min.

In conclusion the communique states that Portugal will publish the text of the Note sent to the Spanish Government as soon as the Portuguese Government considers it proper to do so. — Trans-Ocean Service.

MINISTERS' MEETING IN TOKYO

violating Chinese sovereignty and the critical situation of Suiyuan Province, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek flew to Sian, the capital of Shensi Province in North-western China, on Thursday at 12.30 p.m. from Nanking, arriving there at 5 p.m. There he had a very busy day discussing military problems with Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, Acting Commander-in-Chief of Bandit Suppression in North-western China, Mr. Siu Lik-chi, Chairman of the Shensi Provincial Government, General Yang Fu-sing, Pacification Commissioner of Shensi, and General Yu Hsueh-chung and Ma Hung-kwei, the Bandit Suppression Commanders.

It is reliably reported that the Generalissimo has summoned General Yen Sik-sen, Pacification Commissioner of Shansi, and General Fu Chai-yue, Pacification Commissioner of Suiyuan, to a conference at Sian for the national defence of North-western China.

Mr. Kawagoe has been instructed to investigate the purpose of the Generalissimo's going to Sian and the details of the coming Sian conference.

"EXTREMELY DELICATE STAGE"

Tokyo: Mr. Suma arrived to-day, but declined to discuss the Sino-Japanese negotiations, "which have reached an extremely delicate stage." He proceeded to the Foreign Minister's residence at 4 p.m. and reported to Mr. Arita and other senior officials.

The Jiji Shimpu states that a conference of the War, Navy and Foreign Office leaders will meet on Monday and Tuesday. Mr. Suma will be in attendance, after which he will leave for Shanghai on Wednesday. — Reuter.

POSSIBLE MOTIVES CONSIDERED

ITALY IS SURPRISED

London: The Italian Note which was handed in to the London committee yesterday emphatically rejects all the charges of violation of the neutrality agreement brought against Italy by Russia and Spain. It is stated in official quarters here. The Note further expresses the Italian Government's surprise that the document circulated by the Spanish Foreign Minister should have been regarded by the British Government as a suitable basis for these accusations, since the Madrid Government's charges were formulated with the greatest superficiality and were quite fantastic and devoid of all foundation.

Italy points out that no proofs were available that the planes and arms mentioned in the accusations were delivered after August 28, the day on which Italy joined the non-intervention pact. The fact that the accusations made by Madrid and Moscow were pure invention, states the Note, is shown by the naming of the Italian shipping company "Fisacowitch," a company which does not exist.

In a second Note details are given of 16 cases of alleged Soviet infringements of the neutrality pact which the Ambassador in London, Signor Grandi, reported verbally at the last session of the non-intervention committee.

FRENCH PRESS OPINION

Paris: The attitude and activities of the Russian delegation to the London committee are sharply criticised in the French Right-wing press, general regret being expressed over Soviet Russia's practical withdrawal from the neutrality agreement and the stand taken up by France and England. "It is now obvious," writes the Petit Parisien, "that the Soviet Union will no longer hesitate to supply the Spanish Marxists with weapons and munitions, which action may have serious consequences. France, however, cannot afford to take a similar step, even though other Powers may follow."

ROYAL DUTCH GROUP

New Director-General
Appointed

Amsterdam, Yesterday.
Sir Henri Deterding's resignation from the position of Director-General of the Royal Dutch Co. to become a member of the Board of Directors, will probably be officially announced at the general meeting on November 7, becoming effective on January 1 next. His successor, Dr. De Kok, is now managing director of the Batavian Petroleum Co. at The Hague, where he will continue to make his headquarters.

Dr. Van Eek, the Vice-Chairman of the Directors of the Shell Union Oil Corporation in America, will be appointed managing director in London, and Mr. J. M. De Booy managing director at The Hague. — Reuter.

Russia's example, because it is clear that the object of the Russian move is not practically to assist the Spanish Government but to begin forming a permanent Soviet State in Catalonia, and Barcelona is too near Perpignan for France to countenance such a plan. — Trans-Ocean Service.

CHINA COTTON AND YARN

Continued Shortage
Of "Spot"

SENSATIONAL RISE IN PRICES

According to the report of the China Cotton and Yarn Company the sensational rise in Chinese cotton and yarn during the past week was due to the heavy demand and the shortage of "Spot" yarn in the Shanghai market. Mills are working day and night to produce yarn from cotton, and it will be interesting to note that they are making a net profit of about $40 per bale.

Notwithstanding this fact, their production per day can be roughly estimated at about 8,500 bales, but this amount is so small in comparison with the strong demand that a premium of over $5 per bale was offered in addition, for the "Spot" goods.

SLIGHT EASINESS

For the first time in two weeks, a slight easiness on the market is in evidence. This is probably due to the fact that there were some heavy "Spot" cargo deliveries from Tsingtao. In an ordinary way these heavy "Spot" deliveries would have been considered a relief from the extremely tight situation of the "Spot" market, but coming right in front of the settlement which takes place tomorrow, dealers who have made arrangements already with their finances were unprepared at the moment to lay out fresh cash.

However, it is their opinion that the November prices, which will be "Spot" next week, will be maintained, and are likely to go higher, but forward prices around $20 should be a good sale. The following were the closing prices yesterday for Chinese cotton and yarn.

	Open at	Closed at
October
Yarn	$236.50	$237.50
Cotton	$40.75	$40.30
November
Yarn	$224.50	$223.00
Cotton	$41.70	$41.20
December
Yarn	$215.00	$212.20
Cotton	$41.00	$40.05
January
Yarn	$213.10	$211.10
Cotton	$41.85	$41.80
February
Yarn	$213.00	$213.20
Cotton	$42.10	$42.05
March
Yarn	$213.20	$213.80
Cotton	$42.35	$42.15

WEATHER REPORT

The anti-cyclone remains over Japan, pressure being highest in the vicinity of Tokyo. Pressure is relatively low in the Pacific to the east of the Philippines. The forecast for to-day, as issued by the Royal Observatory last evening, was: East winds, moderate to fresh; fine.
